'Undercover Agent' Seeking Asylum in U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Calvin Macdonald, who claims to have worked for more than 10 years as an RCMP undercover agent in the Communist Party, has applied to emigrate to the United States.

Mr. Macdonald, and a woman he said was his wife, walked into the United States consular office here Tuesday to seek political asylum in the U.S.

He said he was seeking asylum from "political persecution" by the Canadian government.

However, when he emerged from the consular office about half an hour later, he said the U.S. consul here does not have the power to hear his plea for political asylum—that only the U.S. embassy in Ottawa can do that.

Instead of seeking political asylum, he said they will attempt to enter the United States as immigrants.

Mr. Macdonald said his application will have to be processed by the U.S. state department in Washington and that he will receive "special" consideration.

Mr. Macdonald came into prominence three weeks ago when David Colishaw, head of an organization called Underdog, tossed a carton of beef blood on the Commons floor in Ottawa. He said he did this to draw attention to Macdonald, who wants the government to acknowledge he was an RCMP agent.

B.C.-Alaska Power

Vast Plan In Works For North

By IAN STREET

Colonist Legislative Reporter

WHITEHORSE — Resources Minister Ray Williston disclosed plans Tuesday for a vast private power development scheme on the Iskut River in northwestern B.C. and proposed formulation of a plan to handle negotiations with Alaska without recourse to the International Joint Commission.

He told the B.C.-Alaska-Yukon conference that what he suggested would be regarded as a radical change in the accepted pattern of international negotiations.

But the minister said some form of "localized international negotiations" was needed to work out agreements on sharing of such regional resources.

DIRECT HANDLING

"It requires direct handling rather than being taken before the International Joint Commission where it will be considered against a background that will make resolution very difficult," Mr. Williston said. He added that international negotiation could take five to 10 years to gain agreement.

Governor William Egan, who is also attending the conference, said Alaska hoped a new approach could be decided upon that would avoid "throwing problems of this kind into the laps" of the IJC.

Mr. Williston made the first public announcement at the conference of surveys conducted in recent months by the B.C. water rights branch into the feasibility of power projects on the Iskut River.

PULP, TIMBER

With prospect of extremely cheap power, costing between two and three mills, the minister said, there has been a proposal for an integrated pulp and timber operation in the heavily forested Iskut Valley.

Power from the project will probably also serve the $55,000,000 Granduc Copper operations near Stewart, scheduled to begin operations in 1968, and even larger copper deposits to be developed at Galore Creek.

Mr. Williston also told the conference that there is a good prospect that the cities of Petersburg and Wrangell, located on the Alaskan Panhandle some 80 miles from the proposed Iskut Valley site, would also purchase blocks of power.

NO "PIE-IN-SKY"

Forest and hydro electric reserves have already been placed by the B.C. government on vast tracts of the Iskut Valley. "This is no pie-in-the-sky scheme," said Mr. Williston.

The conference voted unanimously to appoint a joint B.C.-Alaska-Yukon power committee to study on a sustained basis co-operative development of power resources in the north.

Cobalt Bomb Or Death Ray New Monster?

LONDON (UPI)—British government quarters were taken completely by surprise Tuesday night by Premier Nikita Khrushchev's announcement of a new "monstrous weapon."

Government officials conceded they had no immediate idea what it might be, and scientists were reluctant to comment immediately.

But the announcement set off at once a host of speculation ranging the weapon among cobalt-type explosives and death rays.

The forum for the Moscow announcement — a gathering of visiting Japanese — and the timing both added to the mystification.

Some observers thought the weapon — if indeed it exists — might be the cobalt bomb, at one time described as the most dreaded weapon of all.

This is considered the type of weapon which Prof. Albert Einstein had in mind when he said in 1950, that, if successful, "radioactive poisoning of the atmosphere and hence annihilation of any life on earth will have been brought within the range of technical possibilities."

Khrushchev, in describing the new weapon, said "it is a means of the destruction and annihilation of humanity."

The Soviet press and radio made no mention of Khrushchev's disclosure.

Informed sources in Washington said the United States has "no evidence" that the Soviets have developed any sensational new weapon.

They said Khrushchev's remarks to a group of visiting Japanese probably was a ploy attempt at intimidation, most likely directed at the Chinese Communists.

One informed source speculated that Khrushchev was talking about advanced nuclear weapons developed as a result of the 1961 and 1962 Soviet atmospheric tests.

In those test programs, the Russians set off the largest nuclear blasts ever triggered.

A Soviet explosion of Oct. 13, 1951, was estimated at the equivalent of 58,000,000 tons of TNT. Experts said this device could easily be stepped up to 100,000,000 tons by just giving it a uranium jacket.

In his remarks, an atomic energy source said, Khrushchev may have been indicating that the test device of 1961 and 1962 now have been developed into deliverable warheads.

Experts were puzzled as much by his use of the word "new" as by the word "monstrous." It is known to be possible to build bigger bombs and to increase the amount of radioactivity they deposit, but the first inclination was to think Khrushchev would hardly describe this as "new."

Malaysian Pact Aim Of Norway

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Norway Tuesday offered the United Nations Security Council a proposed resolution calling for an end to hostilities between Indonesia and Malaysia. It asked them to resume talks aimed at a peaceful settlement of their conflict.

Norwegian Ambassador Sivert A. Nielsen, acting on his government's instructions, introduced the resolution after an Afro-Asian effort to get the two sides to agree to a similar resolution had failed, mainly because of objections by Indonesia. Ivory Coast and Morocco were to have put in that proposal.

CYPRUS TODAY — The council adjourned its debate on the question until Thursday. It will meet today on the Cyprus issue.

From Kuala Lumpur, meanwhile, came reports that Malaysian forces backed by British Gurkhas and New Zealanders killed six Indonesian paratroopers Tuesday and captured a number of others, the defence ministry announced.

His Problem Poser For Police

City police were faced with a problem early today when a man, determined to see Attorney-General Robert Bonner, stood his ground on the steps of the legislative buildings.

Gert Larsen, 8332 Shaughnessy, told the Colonist he had been injured in 1954 and had an operation for the injury in 1959. He has been seeking workmen's compensation ever since, he said, and his case has been given three reviews.

Police tried to persuade him to leave, but technically the legislative buildings are outside city police jurisdiction. It was still a standoff at press time.

Power Rating Set High

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — British Columbia's hydro power potential is about 100,000,000 kilowatts—roughly seven times more than estimates, says Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Dr. Shrum compared his estimate, which he said could be out several thousand kilowatts, with federal and provincial ratings generally used.

The federal government fixes the province's potential at 14,500,000 kilowatts and the provincial water resources says 22,000,000 kilowatts.

PEACE PEAK

Dr. Shrum spoke Tuesday to the final luncheon of the Pacific Northwest Trade Association's conference on energy resources.

He said the total existing electricity consumption of B.C. is 1,300,000 kilowatts, not counting the energy used by Klondike's smelters.

Peak production of the Peace River project will be 4,000,000 kilowatts, said Dr. Shrum.

Reaction Shock-Waves Vary

Northerners Now Convinced Bennett Means His Invitation

By IAN STREET

Colonist Legislative Reporter

WHITEHORSE — Officials and residents of the Yukon are convinced now that Premier Bennett was serious when he invited them to become part of B.C.

There has been no official reaction so far from territorial representatives attending the B.C.-Alaska-Yukon conference here, and none was expected because administration rests with Ottawa.

But the shock-waves resulting from Mr. Bennett's offer, made at Monday's opening conference session and strengthened by the Premier's statement outside the conference hall, hit here early this morning.

Commissioner B. R. Cameron told delegates that he received several long distance calls "from coast to coast" between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. yesterday seeking confirmation of the B.C. bid. One of the calls was from shocked federal authorities in Ottawa.

Local reaction from Whitehorse residents ranged from "It's the best thing that could possibly happen" to the more cautious "what is B.C. going to get out of this?"

In the corridors outside the convention hall Tuesday the premier was lobbying like mad for the B.C. plan. He assured local delegates that all his provisos hoped to gain was fuller development of the northland.

White-Led Congolese Capture Two Towns

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—

Congolese army troops sided by white mercenaries were reported to have recaptured two more towns from Communist-backed rebels Tuesday.

Leopoldville radio said government troops seized Luala, capital of the middle Congo province, and Lulimba, about 100 miles north of the North Katanga capital of Albertville.

Apparent target of the government drive was Stanleyville where rebel leaders have set up a "Congolese people's government."

Congo Rebel Force 'At War with U.S.'

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (UPI) — President Christoph Gbenye of the Congo's "People's Republic" rebel government said Tuesday his regime is at "war with the United States of America."

He said this war was the reason for his refusal to permit an International Red Cross commission to take food and supplies into Stanleyville.

For Cellar-Dwellers

By HAROLD MORRISON

Constantly struggling at the edge of the political abyss, the gallant little Liberal party of Britain sees a faint wisp of hope in the crushing election battle between the Conservatives and the Socialists. It is their hope that fate and a troubled electorate may thrust to the Liberals the balance of power in the next 630-seat Commons.

Yet the party's prospects can not be entirely dismissed. National polls indicate a tight, bone-crushing struggle between the Labor and Conservative parties. A narrow victory margin by either of these giants may force them to court the Liberals with new ardor and attention.

Those who scoff at Jo Grimond's Liberals and perennally doom them to oblivion are asked to look at the figures. During the last five years the party's paid-up membership is said to have increased to 350,000 from 100,000. Of a total of some 20,000 town and other councillors in Britain, the number carrying the Liberal label has climbed to 1,850 from 475.

There also is the indication that not all the faithful are completely enchanted with the Conservative leadership of Sir Alec Douglas-Home or the Labor leadership of Harold Wilson. Liberals hope to build up strength among the white-collar voters of the London suburbs.

This faint prospect of a Liberal resurgence raised the question of how a narrow-margin majority party would fare in the next Parliament. All three parties appear to be committed to the welfare state as far as social services are concerned. It is in the fields of industrial relations, management and national defence where sharp variations may take place.

Labor strives for expanded socialism, for greater government intrusion in industrial management; the Tories want industrial capitalism to flourish. The Tories want to keep the nuclear deterrent force; the Socialists want to scrap it. The Tories want Britain to get into the European common market; Labor wants to move more in the direction of Commonwealth trade.

The Liberals side with the Tories on the common market approach. They reject industrial socialism as an ultimate solution and would have government work in partnership with industry rather than impose federal management and direction over capitalism.

***

If there is any falling away from the party faithful of the giants, the Liberals hope to gain from the Socialists. That they believe, is only fair. After all, it was quarrelling within the Liberal family that is said to have paved the way for expansion of Labor's political power.

Now It's Official U.K. Vote Oct. 15

LONDON (CP) — Ending many months of uncertainty, Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home announced Tuesday the British general elections will be held Oct. 15.

Sir Alec was received in audience Tuesday morning by the Queen at Balmoral Castle and asked for the dissolution of Parliament—first in peace-time to run its full life since a five-year limit was imposed in 1911.

Commons Log Jam Broken By Vote on Farm Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons unanimously approved Tuesday a government bill doubling the maximum amount farmers can borrow from banks under the Farm Improvement Loans Act.

The measure lifts the loan ceiling to $15,000 from $7,500 to cover purchases of farm machinery and other capital improvements to farms.

It was the first legislation passed by the Commons since Aug. 11, when federal-provincial fiscal changes were approved.

Don't Let Fear Keep Doctor Away

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has pain across his chest. He fears that he has heart trouble, just like his dad.

He won't go to a doctor. I think he may be afraid to find out the truth. Yet he is a very sensible and mature man about other things.

If you would print this in your column and he reads it, maybe he will take your advice.

Do you think he might have heart trouble?—MRS. W.H.

I suppose that sometimes a day will pass without at least one letter which says just what this one does—a person is frightened, and won't go to the doctor as a result.

This problem isn't what you'd call unusual. We're all afraid of something! Some of us are afraid of being ill, some of being poor, some of looking like fools in public, some of being hurt, some of hurting somebody. Show me a person who isn't afraid of something, and I'll say that he's superhuman.

Map at a mosquito and the mosquito is scared enough to buzz away. Ignite a firecracker under a horse, and the horse runs. Shout at the dog, and the dog slinks away. It's the vegetable kingdom that isn't "afraid." A tree doesn't lie down when a tornado comes, and if the rosebushes in my back yard had had sense enough, they would have ducked when we had that screaming windstorm in late spring.

NATURAL FEELING

So, as I was about to say before I got into this philosophical frame of mind, it's natural enough to want to avoid the truth if you think it's going to be unpleasant.

But if we are that sensitive enough emotionally, we ought also to be sensitive enough to know how happy we'll be if the truth turns out to be pleasant.

It is rather rare for a person to learn, out of a clear sky, that he has heart trouble. I've been a doctor long enough to have seen a lot of this.

The fellow who makes up his mind to be afraid of heart trouble (or cancer, or nearly anything else) just because his father had it, is usually wrong. There are many causes of chest pain other than heart disease. The same is true of many other ailments that people decide to be afraid of.

SEEK HELP

I wish I knew a solution to this attitude, but I don't. Sometimes I think that the wives of worried husbands (or husbands of worried wives) might do best by agreeing, or seeming to agree with their spouses, and say, "As long as you have heart trouble, why not get such help as is possible?"

This might help—and then the man with imaginary heart trouble would go to the doctor and discover that all he has is muscular cramps, a jittery stomach or tension.

It's an emotional problem. Most of us, when we finally come face to face with a vital issue, meet it with courage. Fear does its worst when we are afraid of shadows.

W. J. Alsdorf

Dear Dr. Molner: I took a daily diet pill for 18 months. Could this have caused an extremely nervous condition and palpitation that has continued for three months since I stopped the practice?—Mrs. M.B.

Yes, diet pills are noted for causing such symptoms, which should wear off quickly when you discontinue the medication, so I suspect something else in your case. Has your thyroid activity been checked?

Dear Dr. Molner: A member of our family says he cannot go to the father of his three sons because he is the male in a boy-girl twin situation. Is there any scientific basis for his claim?—Mrs. G.S.

Certainly not.

Afro-Asian Silence

ONE OF THE more puzzling aspects of the current Indonesian-Malaysian conflict is the reluctance of the Afro-Asian members of the Commonwealth to condemn either by word or action the blatant aggression of the Sukarno dictatorship against a fellow Commonwealth independence.

Despite the incontrovertible evidence the Federation of Malaysia has presented to the world and to the Security Council of the United Nations that Indonesia has launched a military invasion of Malaysian territory, not one African or Asian Commonwealth country has raised its voice in protest.

Not only is this attitude of aloofness a strange one but it is entirely out of character for the majority of newly-created African and Asian republics. To date few have hesitated to voice their opinions or take sides on any international dispute wherever it may be centered.

The continued silence of the Afro-Asian governments must indeed be of considerable comfort to Dr. Sukarno's Communist-oriented regime. Indeed, he may well interpret the reticence of the non-white Commonwealth nations to commit themselves as a major victory for his propaganda and his policy.

Meanwhile, as the Afro-Asian Commonwealth leaders stick with their unrealistic and dangerous pose of disinterested onlookers, the senior Commonwealth nations of Britain, Australia and New Zealand have gone to the aid of the beleaguered Malaysians.

The great pity of the situation is that if the Afro-Asian members of the Commonwealth banded together in opposition to Dr. Sukarno's warlike tactics the probability exists that the Indonesian dictator would back down and withdraw his invasion forces from Malaysia, thus preventing future loss of life, terrorism and instability in this area of Southeast Asia.

However, it now appears to be very clear that the Commonwealth Afro-Asian nations are not one whit interested in the principles of membership in either the Commonwealth or the United Nations unless it brings direct and pecuniary benefits to themselves.

It is to be hoped that this will be remembered in future dealings with these governments either within or without the Commonwealth relationship.

Ottawa Outmoded

PREMIER BENNETT has once again informed the Yukon and Northwest Territories, that if they want to join B.C. they have only to ask for it. In his speech at Whitehorse, Mr. Bennett said that the request would have to come from the North itself, but that his government was prepared to spend $300,000,000 on a road development program for the two territories.

While some eyebrows may be raised at the premier's pledging of such a sum, there is little doubt that the tremendous mineralization alone of the area would make this amount look just as good a bargain 100 years hence, as now does the $7,200,000 which the U.S. paid the Russians for Alaska in 1867.

Mr. Bennett knows from his own experience of the virgin B.C. northland that business and industry follow good roads, and the invitation from the premier is one which the Yukon and the Northwest Territories cannot afford to turn down offhand.

On the other hand, Premier Bennett's off-the-cuff remarks to newsmen on his Yukon trip that if they stay with Ottawa they will be 50 years behind B.C., is hardly likely to increase the camaraderie between Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Pearson when they celebrate with U.S. President Johnson today at the Peace Arch the completion of the Columbia River agreement.

A Deserved Rap

OPPOSITION Leader John Diefenbaker is to be commended for giving Prime Minister Lester Pearson a sharp rap over the knuckles for his surprisingly incontinent statement that by Christmas Canada would have a new flag based on the maple leaf design.

Mr. Pearson deserved all he got for making his contentious remark at a time when most parliamentarians and the majority of Canadians had assumed that the vexatious flag question had at last taken a turn for the better with the compromise decision of all party leaders to turn the whole matter over to a 15-man Commons committee for study.

By his words Mr. Pearson makes it clear that his party representatives (who make up seven of the 15 committee members) will enter the six-week discussion period with completely closed minds on the subject, interested only in following the partisan line already set by their leader.

If such is the attitude of the government, the prospects of the committee succeeding in its task of reaching a unanimous or near-unanimous solution are dim indeed.

Plenty of Choices

THE NUMBER of contenders for the Saanich reeve-ship and one council seat—nine announced candidates so far, and this almost a month before the October 14 nomination deadline—is indicative of a healthy interest in the course of the municipality's affairs, perhaps not surprising in a district developing so fast and with the problems attendant upon rapid growth, but nevertheless out of the ordinary.

The only unwelcome possibility in this situation is that with so many contestants—four at this writing for the position left open by the resignation of Reeve Stanley Murphy and five for the seat which Councillor Hugh Curtis vacates for the reeveship race—votes will be so widely distributed among the candidates as not to express clearly the electors' will in matters of municipal policy.

It hence devolves more than ever upon the contenders for office to make it known without ambiguity where they stand on such questions, especially with regard to the orderly development of the municipality and to regional co-operation. The positions of one or two of them, of course, are already well established; the rest though owe it to the ratepayers and residents to offer firm views and objectives.

At least the candidates have given the voters a fine example, to date, and there is plenty of time to make it an even better one. If the turnout on election day is of similar proportions, the municipality will have reason to be proud of itself.

FAMOUS LETTERS IN CANADIAN HISTORY—NO. 4

The Jesuit Martyrs

Fire and sword swept through Huronia throughout that dark year of 1649.

When it ended, a new story of faith and bravery was written of the Jesuit martyrs and their Indian Christians.

The priests had come to Canada with the first explorers. Their narratives, sent back to France to be published as the Jesuit Relations, inspired others to follow them to the new world to settle the country and convert the savages.

These relations form one of the most complete records of early Canada and this is the first page of the original copy of one of the most famous ones, written by Christophe Regnaud, an artisan at one of the missions, telling of the death of Fathers Breboeuf and L'Alemand who were among eight to be slain by the Indians.

Page From the Jesuit Relations

The true narration of the martyrdom and the blessed death of Father Jean de Breboeuf and Father Gabriel L'Alemand, in New France, in the country of the Hurons, by the Iroquois, enemies of the faith.

Father Jean de Breboeuf and Father Gabriel L'Alemand set out from our cabin to go to a little village named St. Ignace about a short quarter of a league distant from our cabin, in order to instruct the savages and the new Christians of the village. On the 16th day of March in the morning we perceived a great fire, at the place where the two good fathers had gone. This fire troubled us greatly. We did not know whether it was caused by enemies or whether the fire had caught some cabin in the village. The Rev. Father Paul Rague-nau, our superior, took ...

Basque Dreamers

"GORA Eskaldi!" means "Long Live the Basques." On the walls and roads of the French Basque country it accompanies the slogan "Seven Equals One," and together they sum up the aspirations of Basque separatism. In France, the Bretons also and the Catalans have both agitated for separation, but neither has the same abiding sense of nationalism as the Basque people.

The seven in the patriotic equation stands for the seven provinces of the Pays Basque. Four of them (Viscaya, Alava, Navarra and Guipizcoa) are in Spain, and the remaining three (Labourde, Basse Navarre and Soule) are in France. The Basque people are an undeniable entity, five million strong, who are distinguishable from Spaniards and Frenchmen both by their language and the Rhesus factor in their blood group. Despite their geographical location as an Atlantic dormer between France and Spain and the many cultures which have wiped their feet on them since Roman times, the Basques have remained faithful to their own culture, their inheritance, kinship and language.

In Spain, Basque separatism is dynamic. The Spanish Basques are tenacious northerners, hard-working, thrifty and businesslike. They are industrially organized and possess clandestine labor organizations which preach separatism, not Communism. The mineral rich southern slopes of the Pyrenees have contributed to the industrialization of Spanish Basque society and with it the disintegration of rural conservatism so evident on the French side. They claim that they have the support of the Catholic Church. Franco's recent arrests of Basque agitators in the North is evidence of his intolerance, to even a hint of secession. Among the Basques he sees a real threat to unity in Spain.

In France separatism is inspired by Bilbao. French Basques are agricultural, and by comparison slothful. Their soil is poor, and there is virtually no industry.

The true French Basques live in the secret country inland from the coast. Their way of life has hardly changed. They live in primitive dignity which even hydro-electricity has done little to modernize. The village cur still preaches in Basque but the younger generation mostly speak French or Spanish as well, though their parents are often mono-lingual.

Separatism and nationalism mean nothing to a satisfied peasant culture as Marx well knew. They wish only to be left alone to their maize, their cattle and their goats. One thing the Gaullist government understands is the policy of "laissez faire." Separatism in Labourde, Basse Navarre and Soule looks like continuing as a fitful sporadic dream interrupted only by the fanatics of Bilbao.

Each August during the many festivals throughout the Basque country separatism bubbles to a head. As in emerald Ireland it finds expression in folk lore and folk song, in their own peculiar sports and in language revival meetings. Every year a Basque separatist meeting is held alternately in France and Spain with invited delegates from all other minority groups of Europe.

Apart from a Basque weekly newspaper which has a circulation of 2,000 this is about as far as Basque separatism in France has bothered to go.

Basque separatism has endured too long to be lightly brushed aside. Moreover, the Spanish provinces are much too valuable to Franco's program of industrialization to be allowed to secede. Yet when you cross the border into Spain the stabbiness of houses and the comparative poverty are immediately apparent, despite the local wealth of the region. Cross back into France at Behobie and the prosperity of the roads, services, etc., are of striking quality. Why should a French Basque benefit from social security and political freedom bother his head with secession? Why should the Spanish Basques work themselves to the bone for a lazy Andalusian? If seven equalled one, would not the five million Basques be as viable a proposition as Belgium? The skeleton of a nation exists but is hardly a reality in a uniting Europe.

The extremist minority in both regions demand a pan-Pyrenean union incorporating both French and Spanish Basques and free of both countries. But many young Basques now see their future in a Federal Europe in which both France and Spain are equal partners. Economically they would be integrated and their considerable pride satisfied especially if they were allowed to fly their flag and call themselves a nation.

The hunting season is opening and thousands of animals will be slaughtered in the name of sport. Many will be badly wounded and crawl away to die in agony.

I wonder how many of these sportsmen would stop and ask themselves this question? Am I hunting because I want food? Or am I hunting for sport? Am I justified in taking life in the name of sport? I think their conscience would tell them the answer quick enough if they would listen to it.

An Indifferent Wait

Relaxed Campaign

By SHAUN HERRON from Lowell, Mass.

ELECTION interest was high in Canada during a six-week visit. The eastern papers carried endless editorials about Senator Goldwater and letters to the editor were hot for and against the senator and the writers of editorials about him. Once across the Thousand Islands Bridge into New York state, the election sank into the ground.

At a gas station in up-state New York:

"Where's the election?"

"What election?"

And so it was all the way home and so it has been ever since. When the Democrats put their ticket together and fumbled around on the platform looking for the man who was to pronounce the benediction, it was to most people like the weatherman after the late news: "Well, that wraps it up..."

Discussion goes on, of course, in the columns—there's space to fill every day—but it is extraordinarily relaxed, almost languid, as if everything had been said that needed or could be said. Look, they seem to be yawning, you've heard it all, but I'll go over it again anyway.

The rightwingers snarl a bit, as one would expect under the circumstances; the underdog has to show his teeth. The senator has his supporters and they are going from door to door in our neighborhood, putting in letter boxes horrendous Communist-plot reprints of that young man Philbrick who warns us that since the Communists lost power in the unions they are making a bid to regain power by capturing the churches. Well, a plot it rates a smile. The "power" of the churches does not alarm the American public too much: They are quite well versed in domestic political realities.

Some of this material is reprinted from the Christian Herald, an earnest religious publication edited by Dr. Daniel Folsom, who came out against Kennedy's Catholicism and then with great haste came in out of the cold. Some of it is reprinted from American Opinion, the Birchir magazine, and is unflattering—I'm evading the word scurrilous—about Martin Luther King.

On the whole, the stuff is not falling on deaf ears but into waste paper baskets. Kennedy and Johnson have done a superb job of political education. The Americans are more able to assess realities and priorities in foreign affairs than they have ever been in their history. Then there are the candidates and their spokesmen, henchmen, chairmen and pressmen. The president and his running-mate are like appointees waiting cheerfully for the appointed day.

Alcoholic Drinks

France Eases Off

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP from Paris

FRENCHMEN as a nation remain the world's hardest drinkers, but they are beginning to ease off alcohol, and absorb more mineral waters and fruit juices. The average French adult still manages to imbibe the equivalent of 25.8 litres of pure alcohol a year (almost six gallons), as compared with the German's 11.3 litres, and the Englishman's 7.1 litres.

The bulk of this impressive intake slips down Gallie gullets in the form of wine, but brewers have been getting an increasingly large share of the market since the war. French consumption of beer has jumped 53 per cent in the past 10 years. At one time it was a regional drink. Frenchmen in the north quaffed it like Anglo-Saxons, while southerners would hardly look at the stuff. Now, beer is making headway even in the famous wine-growing areas of France.

At the same time, consumption of fruit juices has shot up by 85 per cent and mineral waters by 34 per cent. One reason for this change in pattern is that the Frenchman now coming of drinking age often prefer soft drinks to the strong aperitifs and ordinary gross rouge wine their fathers grew up on.

Also, firms making hand-some profits from bottling spa mineral waters have successfully appealed to the hypocritical that lurks within the liver-conscious Frenchman. Perhaps, too, the crusade against alcoholism since the war is beginning to show results.

Almost certainly the major reason for the changes in French drinking habits is the marked increase in prosperity over the past decade. More people can now afford to drink fruit juice which is more expensive than the cheapest ordinary wine. And more people can pay for better wines than in the past. The French are, for instance, knocking back more of their own champagne than ever before.

The whisky boom is another sign of the French tippler's new affluence. French imports of Scotch doubled between 1961 and 1963, rising to an annual intake of some 10 million bottles. This made France second only to the United States among Scotland's foreign customers. Only a few years ago, whisky was an ultra-snob drink in France favored by the smart people. Francois Sagan wrote about it. Now le Scotch can be found on the shelves of grocers' shops throughout the country.

This is the background to the French government's latest attempt to change the structure of the wine industry. New measures are being introduced to force wine growers to concentrate much more on quality. If the plan works as intended, it will no longer be possible for French growers to produce almost undrinkable local wines AND draw a subsidy for them from the state.

The ministry of agriculture has decided to introduce chemical tests as a simple way of separating the drinkable from the undrinkable, without having to raise an army of wine tasters. Any wine declared chemically unfit to market (by having too much sulphur, for instance) will be trundled to the local distillery and mercifully transformed into methylated spirits or vinegar.

Attempts to rid the country of its worst wines have run headlong in the past into the powerful wine growers' lobby. This time, the nation's drinking habits seem to be moving in favor of the government.

Andrew Bonar Law, the only British prime minister born outside the United Kingdom, was born at Newton, N.B., 168 years ago today—in 1846. Son of a Presbyterian clergyman, he was educated in New Brunswick and at Glasgow before entering business in Glasgow. In 1900 he entered Parliament as a Glasgow M.P.

First World War: Fifty years ago today, in 1914, Germans gave away slowly in fighting extending from Noyon to Verdun. Sixty thousand Germans were sent into Belgium for an attack on Antwerp.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today, in 1939, the French reported that hundreds of thousands of troops were engaged in battle along a 40-mile front from the Moselle River southeast to Sarrebrücken, and that the Germans were withdrawing "inch by inch."

Douglas Urges Silence

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition leader Diefenbaker should take a vow of silence on the flag issue, they were told Tuesday in the Commons by New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas.

Mr. Pearson agreed to the suggestion, although before it went into effect he took a couple of verbal jabs at Mr. Diefenbaker which were loudly applauded by his followers.

Mr. Diefenbaker kept silent in the Commons on the subject but told reporters later that Mr. Douglas should first apply a moratorium on talk to himself.

MEMBERS NAMED

Then, noting Mr. Pearson's acceptance of the moratorium idea, he punned that the prime minister "has turned the flag committee into the mortuary for Liberal hopes."

Meanwhile, all members of the parliamentary flag committee were named. They are:

Liberals—Herman M. Batten (Humber-St. George's, Nfld.), Jean-Eudes Dube (Restigouche-Madawaska, N.B.), Leo Cadieux (Terrebonne, Que.), Joe Macaulay (Hamilton West), John R. Matheson (Leeds, Ont.), Mrs. Margaret Konantz (Winnipeg South, Man.) and Grant Deachman (Vancouver Quadra).

Conservatives—J. Waldo Monteith, Hugh John Flemming, both former cabinet ministers, Theogene Richard (St. Hyacinthe-Bagot), D. V. Pugh (Okanagan Boundary) and Reynold Rapp (Humboldt-Melfort-Tisdale).

From the three smaller parties—Reld Scott (NDP-Toronto Danforth) and Quebecers Marcel Lessard (SC—Lac St. Jean) and Raymond Langlois (Creditiste-Magentic).

Sun blindness was brushed aside in police court Thursday as an excuse for a $2,500 car collision blamed on a Victoria man.

Magistrate William Oatley was told by Colin J. Duddy, 3777 Duke, that the sun had prevented him from seeing a stop sign on Pembroke at Cook.

Duddy's car had passed the sign just before a collision with a second car northbound on Cook.

He was fined $45 for careless driving in connection with an accident that sent five persons to hospital Aug. 25.

"There are two things wrong with that story. First, the stop sign is so low that the sun wouldn't affect it, and second, if you were blinded you should have stopped your car," the magistrate told Duddy.

A 17-year-old Victoria youth was remanded for sentence after pleading guilty to charges of impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Groff G. Brithwaite, of 1690 Derby Road, had been transferred to magistrate's court after being arraigned on same charges earlier in juvenile court.

Police said the youth's car struck a parked vehicle in the 1200 block Pandora early Sunday morning and was stopped a few minutes later on Oak Bay Avenue.

He was remanded until Sept. 22, when a probation report is to be presented to the court.

Another driver was ordered to give up the licence plates of his car to police and was prohibited from driving except on business.

John Edward Peniston, 821 Seven Oaks, was also ordered to pay a total of $140 in fines for careless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Douglas Michael Smerek, of 1715 Chambers Street, said his car, wrecked Aug. 30 when it left Foul Bay Road on a curve marked 20 miles per hour, had $1,100 damage—not $1,800 as the prosecutor had said.

He also explained the liquor reported on his breath by police as the result of two drinks earlier in the evening.

He was fined $80 by Magistrate Oatley.

More than 100 men and women interested in recreation will take part Saturday in the first Island Recreation Commission conference in the Oak Bay municipal hall.

It will be a day of panel discussions and featured talks involving recreation experts, parks men, planners, and experts from other fields relating to community recreation.

"The idea is to get information from people who have already met these problems," said general chairman Ernest Costain.

Such people are Tom Ruben, recreation consultant of Abbotsford; Vancouver recreation director Marshall Smith; Dr. R. Ramsey, UBC assistant professor in the school of physical education and recreation.

Others are: J. W. Lamb and John Brington.

Forty dollars was raised for charity during the annual summer charity bazaar held at the Moxie Hall, Wednesday. Master of ceremonies were: Mrs. Frank Logan, 5 Joyce Wallace and Yvonne Cunningham; 2. Ellen Reid and Margaret McKeown; Elizabeth Laidlaw and Kay Clark; Frances Reid-Wood; 3. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller; 4. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ritchie; 5. Boyd Moore and Ted Oatley; 6. William Lamb and John Brington.

Others are: J. W. Lamb and John Brington.

Bench Warranted?

Benches which were put up by public works department to allow senior citizens to enjoy landscaped grounds at Victoria Law Courts building seem not to have caught on as yet. Two lunch pails, probably belonging to workmen from nearby Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. construction, and young lady in background were only bench occupants at time Jim Ryan took picture.

Pearson Off to B.C.

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson arrived in Lethbridge Tuesday night, completing the first leg of a western trip to join President Johnson in marking ratification of Canada-United States Columbia River Power Treaty.

The prime minister is to join President Johnson today at Great Falls, Mont., from where they will fly to Vancouver and then to Blaine, Wash., for ceremonies celebrating the signing of the treaty.

They are unlikely to see much of the Columbia River during their flight.

The weather office in Vancouver said Tuesday night cloud cover will extend 18,000 to 20,000 feet and "not much of the ground will be seen from the air Wednesday morning, although there might be some glimpses."

Things won't be much better when they arrive in Vancouver. A system that is expected to produce pouring rain in the morning is forecast to pass before the 1 p.m. landing here.

But the weather will be cool and showery for the rest of the day.

The president will review a guard of honor from the Queen's Own Rifles of Equinault when he arrives at the RCAF base at Vancouver airport.

After speeches by himself, Prime Minister Pearson and British Columbia Premier Bennett, the party will drive to Blaine for the Columbia ceremonies.

Meanwhile, the most important part of the Columbia deal, the financing, will be closed without fanfare in New York today.

Agents of the United States Treasury will turn over to A. B. Harkin, Assistant Deputy Finance Minister, a cheque for about $254,000,000 in U.S. funds.

Young Cyclist Injured

A youthful cyclist escaped serious injury on the way to school Tuesday when his bicycle collided with a car.

Robert Carlson, 8, of 431 Government Street was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for leg and face bruises.

Police said the child's bicycle collided with a car driven by John Brice, 545 Cornwall.

The accident occurred just before 9 a.m. at the corner of Toronto and Huntington.

Montreal Holdup

MONTREAL (CP)—Crown witnesses identified Tuesday five young men charged with capital murder as being participants in an attempted gunshop holdup in which Leslie MacWilliams was killed.

Peter Sotiriades, 34, a part-time gun salesman at the International Firearms Company, testified that Francois Schirm, 22, a former French army paratrooper, pointed a rifle at him while a companion he said looked like Edmond Guenette, 20, fired the shot that killed the victim.

Sotiriades was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Guenette, an unemployed laborer.

MURDER DEFENDANTS IDENTIFIED IN COURT

Schirm, Gilles Brunet, 28, Cyrille Delisle, 26, and Marcel Tardif, 22, also charged with capital murder in MacWilliams' death, were present in court.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

According to Max Faulkner, the British professional, who writes an entertaining column each summer in this paper, the British PGA experiment with the larger American ball has been "disastrous."

The larger ball is not suited, he says, to the windy conditions experienced in Britain, but his main objection is that in the tournaments in which the larger ball was mandatory "the best men have not been taking the top prizes."

What Max has probably means is that the players who have done best with the smaller ball have not played so well with the larger. This in his opinion makes the American ball "a failure" in British conditions.

As the British professionals for many years have played a smaller ball in world competition it would, to the outsider, appear that their so-called expertise with the small ball hasn't done them much good.

Maybe if the British persisted with the larger ball a little longer and brought along a new set of players capable of handling it—as apparently they did under the PGA experiment last summer—then Britain might develop a new class of top player who would hold his own in international events.

There is little doubt that the larger ball demands much more accurate hitting and control than does the British ball, and the fact that the Americans can control it in all sorts of weather—from Pebble Beach storms to the desert winds of Texas, is an indication that the British pro is blaming the tools when perhaps he should be blaming himself.

As Faulkner admits, the rank and file of golf like the larger ball because it gives them a larger target to hit and it also sits up better on the fairway. In addition it is probably a better ball around the greens—the very phase of the game at which the British professionals are behind the rest of the world's top-notchers.

Victoria's left-handers have started their task of planning the 1966 National Amateur Left-handed golf championship, by selecting chairmen for the various committees.

The National event, being played in Canada for the first time, will be played over the Royal Colwood and Uplands courses July 19-22.

NALG has named Bill Gilmour, Marine Drive, Vancouver, and a former president of the B.C. Left-Handers, to be national president for 1966, and Milt Dow of Victoria has been appointed the 1966 tournament chairman.

Among those appointed committee chairmen are: Fred Cowan, registration; Gordon Dunaway, housing and hospitality; Bert Nelson, publicity and programs; Jim Duncan and John Fraser (Nanaimo), finance; Alex Caddell, clubhouse and catering; Pat Prumetto, ladies' activities; Jack Irving, entertainment; Conway Parrott, transportation; Brian Holliday, organizations; John Furmston, rules; Bob Lawson, marshals; Dave Naysmith, starters; Wally Butler, caddies; Carl Locatelli, scorers; Howard Wilson, facilities, and Ted Gardner, awards.

The tournament is open to left-handers of Canada, the U.S. and Mexico.

Laurie Kerr, Royal Colwood champion a year ago, made a good start in the defence of his title when his 73 gave him medalist honors in the qualifying round last Sunday.

Second was Bill Garner, followed by Vic Painter and Ricky Kent.

Match play starts this week.

Charlie Smith, secretary of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Association, tells me a busload of local players are taking part in the B.C. Senior Golfers' Association final tournament of the season at Burquitlam on Friday, Sept. 25. Bus leaves on the 9 a.m. ferry.

Two weeks later on Oct. 9, Uplands will be the venue of the Vancouver Island seniors' fall tournament at which the main prize at stake is the handsome R. W. Mayhew Trophy, which for the past year has been jointly held by John Sturdy and W. E. Lovell.

Lacrosse Coach Confident

Vancouver's Not Worried Yet

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Coach Alex McKay of Vancouver Carling's lacrosse team doesn't feel his crew can be counted out of the Mann Cup race.

Brooklin Merchants, Ontario Senior Lacrosse champions, handed Vancouver a 10-8 defeat Monday night to take the first game in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior championship.

Lee, Mar Take Pistol Trophies

Quinton Mar of Victoria and Vancouver's J. Lee took home most of the trophies at the Pacific Command Rifle Association's annual pistol shoot at the Victoria City Police range Sunday.

Lee won the high aggregate award in the .22 calibre division with 570 points, and the grand aggregate title with 1,118 points. Mar was runner-up in both events.

Mar took centre-fire aggregate championship with 549, one point better than Lee.

HMCS Naden won the navy team competition.

Mays

Willie Wilts To .299

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember when they were speculating whether or not Willie Mays would finish the 1964 National League baseball season with an average of .400 or higher?

That was approximately four months ago after San Francisco Giants' outfielder had completed the first month of the campaign on May 14 with a .449 mark.

He's now hitting .299.

Meanwhile, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh and rookie Tony Oliva of Minnesota appear to have the National and American League batting titles wrapped up.

Clement gained three points to .342 in last week's games, collecting 10 hits in 25 times at bat.

Oliva fell two points to .323. However, he holds a 16-point lead over Baltimore's Brooks Robinson, the runner-up.

Senior Curlers Set Up Playoff

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian curling championship for senior players 55 and older was announced Tuesday by the Dominion Curling Association.

Two teams from Ontario and one from each of the other provinces will compete in the final, the announcement said. The first tournament is to be held March 22, 1965, at Port Arthur.

The DCA is to handle arrangements for the national competition. Member associations in the provinces would handle provincial playdowns.

Sam Rothchild of Sudbury will be the competition's co-ordinator and national liaison officer.

The event will be sponsored by a distillery. (House of Seagram)

First Round to U.S. Yacht

Sagging Sails Just No Match

By JACK V. FOX

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Constellation handed Britain's challenging yacht Sovereign a royal trouncing Tuesday in the opener of the America's Cup matches as the gallant veterans found their sails inferior to the Yankees.

It was a jolting disappointment to the British once again in this 113-year-old series which they have yet to win and their outlook was dismal, for "Connie" won by the overwhelming margin of five minutes, 29 seconds.

LIKE DINGHY

The blue-hulled Sovereign looked like a small sailing dinghy on the horizon as Constellation, with Eric Ridder at the helm, swept over the finish line a mile ahead of the tooting and cheering of a spectator fleet of about 200 craft.

Robert Bavier, Jr., got Constellation off the "lead" right at the start and from then on it was never in doubt although veteran Peter Scott, at the helm of Sovereign hung on grimly.

AGAIN TODAY

Shortly after the finish, Sovereign ran up a signal indicating she wanted to race again today so they will go at it again then in this best of four out of seven series.

It appeared that Sovereign may have been bothered by the wake from "Connie's Army." The power boats stayed up abreast of the American boat, although the Coast Guard did a sharp job of keeping them out of the way.

But they left behind them several times seemed to tack his boat onto another angle to avoid the rough water.

The sails were the difference in the last analysis and Constellation clearly showed her superiority heading into the wind on the 24-mile course of six legs.

It was the first encounter between Bavier and Scott, friends for 12 years and both wartime navy combat commanders, and the British crew's sound performance was hampered particularly by her mainsail.

At the very outset it flutered and sagged about 15 feet below the peak of the mast while Constellation's white mainsail held firm and unrippled.

New rules of the race, effective this year, provide that all materials in these $500,000, 12-metre yachts must be of its country's manufacture, and the Yankees seemed to have the better product in the sails of Ted Hood.

Sovereign's margin of defeat was decisive but not as bad as some of the shellacking handed in 1958 to the British entry, Scrimpe, which once was eight minutes, 20 seconds behind Columbia.

Yachting experts rated Sovereign a far better boat than Scrimpe but perhaps not any better than Australia's Gretel, which lost 4-1 two years ago.

All-Canada Side Will Face Fijians

The Fiji representative rugby team will play an all-Canada side in Victoria Saturday, Oct. 24 at Macdonald Park.

Originally, Fiji was scheduled to play a Victoria or B.C. team, but Victoria rugby officials announced yesterday that a Canadian side will be selected for the match.

Victoria was chosen over Vancouver as the venue for the game because of the success of a visit by the Scottish national team last May.

SMALL PROFIT

The Scots, who beat B.C. 21-0, drew 2,000 people to Macdonald Park and allowed the rugby association to make a small profit on the venture.

The guarantee necessary for the Fiji-Canada game is greater than the one required in May. Officials feel, however, that the attractiveness of the Fiji rugby and the novelty of an all-Canada team will make the game a success at the ticket-window.

RARE TEAM

Due to the distances involved and the varying rugby seasons in different parts of Canada, national sides are rarely picked.

More Gains For Tobacco At Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market declined in moderate trading with speculative action heightening toward the close. Typical among slipping issues were Great Lakes Paper and Walker-Gooderham, both off 1/2 to 3/4 and 3/4 respectively. Consumers' Gas and Calgary Power both slipped 1/4 to 1/2 and 1/2.

In oils, Shell and Husky fell 1/4 each to 18 1/2 and 10. Not all issues suffered. Rothmans and Imperial Tobacco gained 1/4 and 1/2 respectively to 20 1/4 and 14 1/2.

Senior basic metals were strong throughout the session. Hudson Bay gained 1/2 to a new 1964 peak of 7 1/4, but Inco slipped 1/4 to 8 1/2.

Senior western oils were also active and strong. Hudson's Bay rose 1/4 to 18 1/4 and Home B fell 1/4 to 18.

Dip at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks were off fractionally. Moore Corp. lost 1 1/2 to 5 1/4 and Chemulac 1/2 to 16 1/4. Canada Cement and Dominion Textile added 1/4 each to 4 1/4 and 2 1/4. Asbestos and Imperial Tobacco 1/4 each to 24 1/4 and 14 1/4. Fraser and Great Lakes advanced 1/4 to 3 1/4 and 2 1/4. Trans-Canada Pipe Line added 1/4 to 4 1/4. B.C. Telephone and CPR lost 1/4 each to 6 1/4 and 5 1/4.

Primary metals were mixed. Deco advanced 1/4 to 18 1/4 and Dominion Bridge 1/4 to 20 1/4. Canada Iron Foundry lost 1/4 to 39 1/4 and Aluminum and Stelco 1/4 each to 31 1/4 and 25 1/4.

MacMillan New High

VANCOUVER — Industrials made strong gains, with MacMillan rising to a new high of 33 1/4. Trans-Mountain was 20 1/4 and Westcoast 18.

Mines were mixed but with strong features. Granduc rose to 6 1/4 and Bethlehem to 7 1/4. Sheep Creek was up 5 cents to 1 50 and Torwest was active at 7 1/4. Copper rose five cents to 7 1/4 and Caribore to 8 1/4. Silver Standard slipped to 6 1/4.

Profits Taken

NEW YORK (AP) — Motors and steels led an early stock market assault on new highs, but the advance faltered and the stock list backed away into an irregular decline.

Volume swelled to 5,700,000. Traders took profits ruthlessly, however. Some of the profit-taking was attributed to the start at sundown of Yom Kippur, the high Jewish holiday, which some observers believe will lead to a less vigorous market today.

Another factor which discouraged some investors was the report of wildcat strikes at Ford that began a fortnight after bargaining talks were resumed between that company and the United Auto Workers.

All four of the top steel-makers touched new highs for the year in early trading. By the close these market wheelers presented a mixed pattern. Bethlehem, third most active stock, held a gain of 1/4 at 41 1/4. Steel was off 1/4 at 61 1/4. Republic Steel was up 1/4 and Jones and Laughlin down 1/4.

Baby Carriage Hid Lifter's Loot

An immigrant mother who used her baby's carriage to hide stolen merchandise during a shoplifting spree was fined in police court Tuesday.

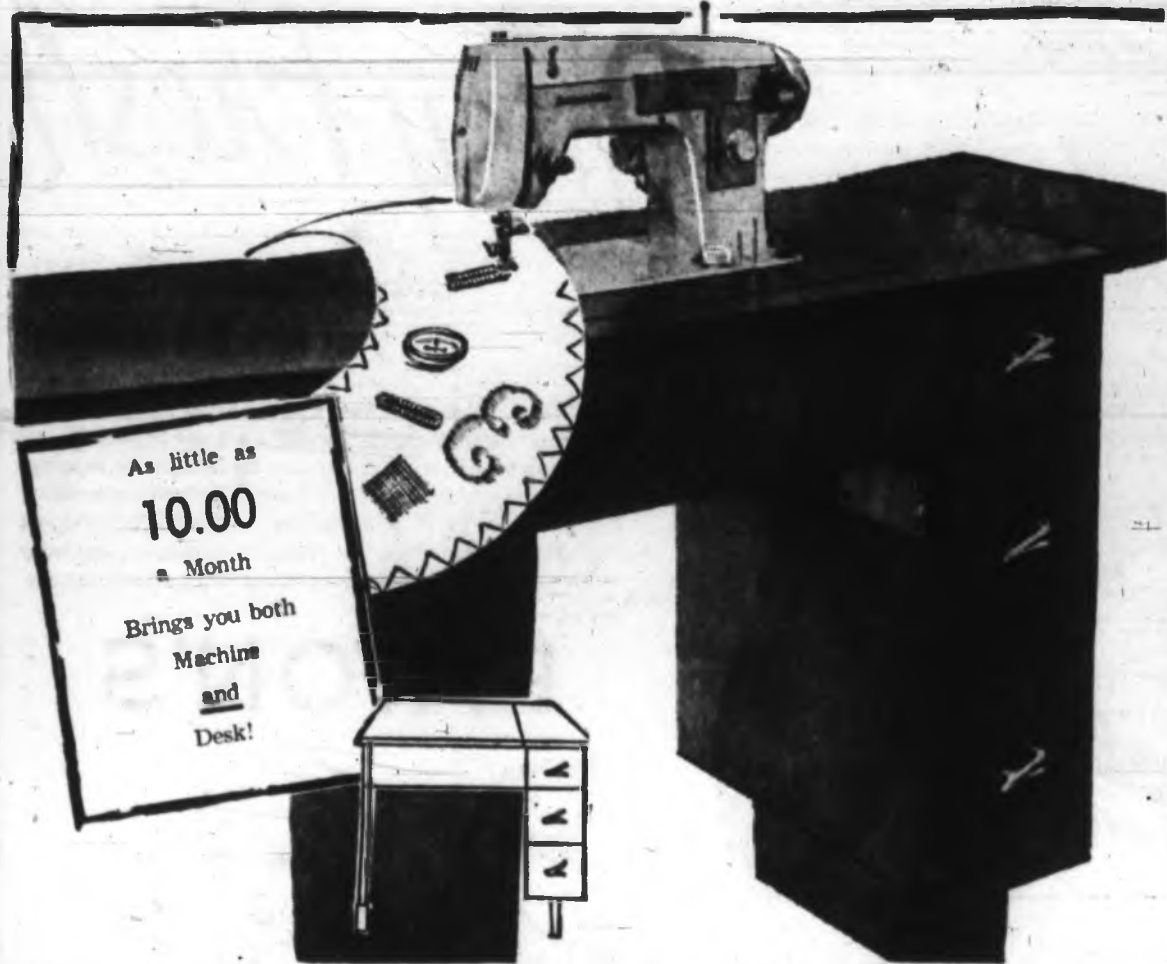

The detective told Magistrate William Ostler she had watched the woman place merchandise among the blankets in her child's carriage during a stroll among the counters.

The woman was arrested after leaving the store and police recovered nail polish, a nestle, shorts and pens worth $14.68.

Mrs. Wakhuber pleaded guilty through an interpreter who translated the evidence as it was presented.

Magistrate Ostler fined her $50 and bound her over on a $100 peace bond.

Legal Loopholes Handcuff Police

Gilbert Kennedy, B.C.'s deputy attorney-general, says loopholes in the criminal code hampering the work of provincial law-enforcement agencies.

In an interview Tuesday he cited examples of what either has happened or could have happened in B.C. because of the loopholes:

A smuggler caught off Vancouver Island on a Sunday went free: a bookie escaped the clutches of the law by using a telephone answering service, and a habitual criminal guilty of dozens of minor offences walked the streets immune from arrest.

LEGISLATION URGED

Mr. Kennedy is just back from a conference of deputy attorneys-general at Montreal which decided to ask the federal justice department to plug some of the loopholes.

He said the loopholes were first drawn to Ottawa's attention four years ago. "With this backlog, we are hopeful there will be a new criminal law bill in Parliament shortly."

In the case of the Sunday smuggler, he said, the law actually handcuffs the RCMP, responsible for policing B.C.'s territorial waters.

The code says an alien cannot be charged with a waterborne offence without the approval of the federal justice minister.

***

Kennedy

"Have you ever tried to get the justice minister on a Sunday? It just means that in the case of an American we have to let him go."

The code also prohibits police seizure of telephone equipment owned by a phone company.

NO CONTACT

One B.C. bookie had taken advantage of the loophole by arranging to have his bets placed with an answering service. Since there was no personal contact police had to wait for the bookmaker to make a slip before they could catch up with him.

Dr. Kennedy said the code specifies action against habitual criminals must be taken in two steps: first, the criminal must be declared habitual by a court; then a separate order must be issued by the court putting the criminal in custody for the public's safety.

Clever lawyers could delay the process immediately, with the result that the court might find a man a habitual criminal, yet lack the ability to ensure his being in custody.

Meters May Add Color To City

Victoria's 1,750 parking meters may be painted in bright colors soon — if next week's public works committee approves a new identification plan.

The color code identifies maximum parking time allowed like this:

Green for two hours, blue for one hour, yellow for half-an-hour and red for 15 minutes.

The idea was originally suggested by the special traffic committee and has been under study for more than a month.

Mysore

Training Centre Sought

A week-long co-operative effort by Canadians and East Indians in Victoria begins Saturday to raise funds to establish a training centre in Mysore, India.

The effort by Oxfam—the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief—is designed to provide men and women from southeast Asian countries with training in processing, packaging and storage methods, so that essential foods can be preserved and distributed among hungry people.

TREASURE HUNT

Saturday there will be a treasure hunt at 3651 Mayfair Drive at 3 p.m., a lucky ticket draw for pottery prizes at Kestel Kraft Shop, Quadra and Fort, and an all-East Indian fashion show at Italian Hall, 804 Kings Road, at 8:30 p.m.

Sunday many local churches will hold special services.

"SHARE A LOAF"

Hudson's Bay Company will display a special "share a loaf" stand Monday, and a coffee and tea party from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Douglas Room.

At 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dr. Brock Chisholm will speak at the Douglas Building Cafeteria; Thursday features poetry reading by UBC English professor Robin Skelton at 8 p.m. in St. John Ambulance Auditorium, 941 Pandora, and a special showing of the Jerry Gossley show will be held at 8:30 p.m. Friday in HMCS Naden Old Gymnasium, Esquimalt.

Tall Building

Computer Digesting Student Registration

By IAN ARBOI.

The calmest person at first day of registration Tuesday at University of Victoria was the registrar himself.

"I've got to be," said R. R. Jeffels, the man in charge of the four-day tabulations in the gymnasium at Gordon Head campus.

His chief assistant is an IBM machine which he feeds twice a day at lunch time and supper time. After its evening meal Friday, the machine will be given a chance to sleep on the problem and then give out the answers Saturday.

FEAST OF FORMS

Preparing the feast of forms for the machine was the main task of the hundreds of first-day students, and making certain the material was digestible was the task of the faculty and senior students.

Form-filling and checking was for most at least a three-hour job. The first task for each was to make up a time-table. This is not easy.

ALTERNATIVES

The schedule of courses, sections, times, days, rooms, and campuses takes 18 pages, each line of which gives an alternative.

The student may have to change courses because two he wants are on at the same time. Or one course at Lansdowne campus may be followed by one at Gordon Head.

In the interests of traffic safety, the nerves of the student and prompt arrival at classes, two consecutive courses at the different campuses are not allowed.

FIVE MINUTES

"There's only five minutes between classes and it takes 17 minutes to walk the distance," said one student who timed the trip.

Freshman student Charles Haynes, 734 Newbury, is going to roar back and forth on his motorbike to accommodate his split campus life—three courses at each.

The university is also providing bus shuttle service. "In many cases a student can take all his courses at one of the campuses," said Mr. Jeffels.

CLASS LISTS

After the time-table has been worked out and checked by senior students, the registering student goes to the various departments where a faculty member initials his course and hands him an IBM card.

He collects as many IBM cards as courses he is taking and hands them to a registration clerk. From these cards, the computer makes class lists and a master nominal roll.

A book of five cards has to be filled out: one card for the registrar; others for the housing officer and co-ordinator of women's activities, students' council and the library.

HISTORIC MOMENT

Of the 2,532 students expected to register, and "the quickened interest everywhere in higher education," Mr. Jeffels said: "This is the historic moment."

"In this country Canadians are realizing the need to turn themselves into better human beings, not only for an adequate living, but for an understanding of the multiple surfaces of the contemporary world."

DANCE CAPS

For the students who on Tuesday were getting to understand the multiple surfaces of the world at the University of Victoria, a change from the stress of time-table problems and the boredom of filling out forms was the section in the gymnasium given over to student affairs.

Freshmen were invited to don bright dance caps—at 50 cents each.

LIBRARY CARDS

Polaroid pictures were taken—no direct charge—and presented to the student in a laminated card with his name, address, permanent registration number and year of registration.

The library will paste a small plate to this which will automate records of his book lending.

The students are of all ages. Despite grey hair, I was asked by the cashier as I was about to leave, "Have you paid yet?"

Legion Meets

Equinault Dockyard Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. today in the main hall, 622 Admirals Road.

In front of new student union building, Luana Kellington, 16; Pam Watson, 18; Ron Donaldson, 17; Fay Featherby, 18, and Lynne Henderson, 18.

Teachers' Salary Plans Denounced by Edgelow

Reaction of a Victoria alderman to the announcement Tuesday that Greater Victoria teachers would demand a substantial salary increase this year has been to denounce the demand and propose an investigation into existing costs.

"The teachers already receive excellent pay in all ranks for approximately a nine-month year. And they can, and many do, earn extra money in their off-holiday period," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow told The Daily Colonist Tuesday night.

BOOST PREDICTED
The alderman was commenting on a prediction by Norman Preston, teacher's salary negotiation spokesman, that teachers would go for a substantial increase when they formulate a 1965 salary proposal at a general meeting Sept. 23.

Ald. Edgelow said that at present half the municipal taxes are going to maintain the school system and that home-owning pensioners, in particular, can ill afford any increase.

He suggested that a way of keeping costs down, even while the number of students increases, would be "to use throughout the year the millions of dollars invested in schools instead of shutting them down for 2½ months each year."

"Stagger the school system," he recommended.

The alderman feels that with schools operating all year long there would be no present need to build more schools. "One-sixth more use would result," he said.

Concerning the fact that staggered schedules would mean holidays for the children at times other than in the summer, the alderman felt this would be no disadvantage to anyone.

SEEK REPORT

"It would spread the tourist season, and this would be good for the whole economy of the province," he said.

"In any case, with our weather, summer is as bad a time as you can get for holidays," he added.

Ald. Edgelow feels the city should ask the School Board of Greater Victoria to look into the matter of greater utilization of school facilities and report back to council.

He says the city could go on from there with a recommendation to the provincial government for changes in the school regulations to make possible year-round utilization of schools.

Bishop Emi de Roo is in Rome for the third session of the ecumenical council which opened Monday.

The Bishop of Victoria has attended three conventions in Canada and one in Liverpool since he left the city in mid-August.

He has tentative plans to attend the 28th International Eucharistic Congress in Bombay, India, from Nov. 28 to Dec. 6.

He is expected back in Victoria about Dec. 21.

North Saanich Hearing

Vocal Cliques No Bar To Housing Scheme

Developers planning a 412-acre Uplands-type housing scheme in North Saanich do not intend to be dissuaded by any vocal cliques, a packed public hearing heard Tuesday night.

Lawyer Louis Lindholm, representing Hagar and Swayne Ltd., told this to 250 people at the hearing in North Saanich Secondary School.

The company is hoping for rezoning of the old Montford Estate near John Dean Park from rural to residential which, if granted, could kill a recommended area development plan by the Capital Region Planning Board.

'VOCAL—NOT LOCAL'

After Mr. Lindholm made this remark, Dr. A. B. Nash, chairman of the North Saanich Advisory Planning Commission said, "I deplore Mr. Lindholm's reference to local cliques and I request him to withdraw his reference."

Mr. Lindholm, "I said vocal not local—I was criticizing prejudging of this issue."

Despite the large turnout and the gravity of the issue, the meeting was fairly orderly.

'MEMORIAL'

In the chair was Don South, director of the municipal affairs department's planning division, who will report to municipal affairs Minister Dan Campbell on the opinions voiced at the hearing, upon which the minister will base his decision.

Mr. Lindholm said the proposed development would be a "memorial to the beauty of the area."

He said "unlike many planners" his clients had "planted many dollars here—in most cases their life savings."

FOR SCHEME

In favor of the scheme Mr. Lindholm made the following points:

- It would have the lowest water rates in the district.
- Travelling and shopping facilities were already established within easy access around it.

- There were plenty of fishing, picnic and boating facilities around and a nearby golf course.

- There were two existing schools nearby and the school board had bought 10 acres of the proposed development site to build a third.

- Twenty acres of the 412-acre area had already been zoned for housing development.
- The area had excellent natural drainage and a sanitary system would be provided.

NO BOXES

Mr. Lindholm said the property surpassed any other in North Saanich for suitability. He said his clients proposed a beautiful, 10-to-25-year, carefully controlled development—"not shabby box-like development."

Only mature timber would be removed and the park-like nature of the area would be retained.

OPPOSED

Mr. Lindholm said it would be two years before the first of the proposed houses would be built.

Opposing the application, North Saanich resident Hugh Stephen—he made the well-known Stephen report on land use—said he was reluctant to do so.

Quoting from his own report, Mr. Stephen said the land belonged to the people and only swift action could prevent speculative development.

URBAN SPRAWL

He said the scheme was the wrong development in the wrong place and at the wrong time.

To develop on this basis caused urban sprawl, which he defined as "a non-compact process which takes place in a non-planned manner."

"It hedges across the countryside instead of spreading from already developed areas," he said.

Director of the Capital Region Planning Board Anthony Roberts said if the minister were to permit this application he would be unable to refuse similar future ones.

This would definitely bring urban sprawl to the peninsula. It was estimated that by 1981 another 80,000 residents would be in the area.

They could not be accommodated in this type of development.

This brush-covered tunnel helped prompt revolt by more than half the parents on 4900 block Cordova Bay Road against school board order to send children to Lochside School. Still attending Cordova Bay School are 12 of block's 20 youngsters including, from left, Janet Busby, 7; Roland Brechert, 7; Gerry Busby, 6; Ivo Olivetto, 8, and John Clarke, 8.—(Jim Ryan)

Legal Action Considered In School Shift Fight

Legal action has been hinted by some parents of the 4900 block Cordova Bay Road whose children have been caught up in a transfer hassle involving Cordova Bay and Lochside Schools.

A spokesman for the group said last night parents of the 4900 block would present their children for classes in Cordova Bay School today.

"We feel we have legal grounds to enforce sending our children to Cordova Bay School instead of Lochside School," the spokesman said.

They will escort their children to the school this morning. The move followed a Saanich

Pupils Get Escort Of Parents

school board decision Monday night to ignore a petition asking them to rescind a decision affecting the residents of the 4900 block.

The board elected to send students living in 4900 block to Lochside School instead of Cordova Bay School which they previously had been attending. One of the principal complaints was that children would have to walk a road that was dangerous because of traffic or take an overgrown half-mile path.

SAFE CONDUCT

"We feel we have legal grounds to enforce sending our children to Cordova Bay School instead of to Lochside. We will present our children at the school tomorrow," Mrs. J. F. Clarke, 4948 Cordova Bay Road, said.

She said one of the people involved in the transfer argument had gone through the Public Schools Act with a lawyer and the group was acting under a section pertaining to the safe conduct of children to school.

She hinted the parents might take legal action if admission was refused.

BEYOND REASON

One resident termed the issue "too ridiculous—beyond all reason."

Another parent charged the board with splitting homes following a decision to allow Grade 1 students to attend either school.

Pupils from other grades, however, would be transferred to Lochside School, meaning a family with a Grade 1 pupil and a Grade 3 pupil might have one in each school.

Voters' List Names Increase—Slowly

Despite a blanket-coverage campaign started Aug. 1 by the Association of Women Electors to put 1,000 more names on the Oak Bay voters' list by Oct. 1, only 110 names have been added so far.

Drive director Mrs. S. W. Shackell said she is concerned with those interested enough to go out on election day, who automatically assume their name will be on the list, and find that it is not.

"The time to check is now," says Mrs. Shackell.

Bay Residents Oppose Marina

Residents around Blue Heron Bay near Sidney told a public hearing Tuesday night the development of a marina in the bay would be a nuisance, an eyesore and a menace to health by pollution. They were opposing an application by the Capital City Yacht Club to remove the area from residential to marina use.

The residents said the establishment of a marina in the bay would destroy the peace and quiet of their surroundings. They said fuel oil from the boats would pollute the water and interfere with the federal government's bird sanctuary there.

Gerald A. Neely, for the yacht club, said it was intended to dredge the bay's mud flats and provide one single boathouse for the 100 or more yachts.

There would be no workshop and the scheme was an inevitable development.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club was in the middle of a residential area—The Uplands—said Mr. Neely, and caused no inconvenience to residents.

Bob Hewitt, a member of the Capital City club, said the club had 150 members who were responsible citizens of Sidney and Brentwood as well as Victoria.

Frostbiters Plan Winter Prelude

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club will stage an open regatta this weekend for El Toros and Sabots, to popularize the upcoming winter series.

The Saturday and Sunday regatta will feature series for everyone from tyros to experts—and RVYC members and non-members. Events will cover all ages. Inquiries can be made at the yacht club.

Bride Carries Prayer Book

Following a honeymoon trip to Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg and California, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Leach will make their home in Victoria.

The bride is the former Kathleen June Moxam, daughter of Lieut. Robert Frank Moxam, RCN, and Mrs. Moxam, 4114 Hawkes Avenue. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leach of Regina.

Fr. William J. O'Brien officiated at the noon-hour ceremony in Our Lady of the Rosary Church at Langford. Baskets of pink and white gladioli were at the altar. The bride and groom knelt on white satin pillows to take their vows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length gown with ribbon-ette French lace bodice that was fashioned with jewel neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves. The empire waistline was encircled with a pleated bandeau and the skirt extended to a cathedral length train from beneath a bridal bow.

The shoulder-length veil misted from a taffeta rose headpiece that was accented with seed pearls and leaves. She carried a prayer book, gift of the groom, topped with red rosebuds and white stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Sinclair and bridesmaid, Miss Patricia Wellburn, chose identical bell-skirted, street-length gowns of blue peau de soie with matching jackets. Their headpieces were self-fabric roses trimmed with net and they carried bouquets of pink gladioli.

Best man was Wilfred Leach and ushers were Allan Cameron and Philip Winklemans.

Robert Foster proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at reception that followed in the wardroom of HMCS Naden. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked by red roses. Arrangements of pink and white carnations completed the decorations.

For travelling, the bride chose a turquoise wool dress-maker suit with velvet and maribou cloche hat en tone and black accessories.

Garden Notes

Spear Those Insects

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Ever since the late Rachel Carson published her thought-provoking book Silent Spring, home gardeners have become increasingly wary of the use of poison sprays.

By the same token, the bugs are still with us, and in increasing numbers, and some serious scientific workers have expressed the fear that we'll all starve unless the pest population can be kept under control.

The controversy boils down to this: Miss Carson says we are poisoning ourselves and our beneficial wildlife with insecticide sprays. Her opponents say that the bugs won't leave us anything to eat unless we do spray.

Now word comes that we may be able to eat our cake and have it too. I have just been reading a report on a natural product called diatomaceous earth which is non-poisonous but appears to possess potent insecticidal properties. Like so many breakthroughs, the discovery of its bug-killing properties was accidental.

Mr. Neil Clark of Phoenix, Arizona, is the head of a company manufacturing synthetic gems, mostly turquoise and terrazo, and one of the raw materials used in the process is diatomaceous earth, which is quarried in large chunks, mostly from a deposit near Quincy, Washington.

Houseflies were bothersome in the gem factory, but it was noticed that whenever they worked with this white powder, the flies disappeared. Clark enlisted the help of his chief chemist, Louis de Lisle, to find out why.

Diatomaceous earth is composed mostly of the skeletons of microscopic marine animals deposited at the bottom of lagoons over 10 million years ago. These tiny skeletons contain silica in the form of tiny glass spears that pierce the waxy shell which holds the insect's body fluids. With the loss of these fluids, the insect dies.

According to the test data sent to me, the dust is effective against aphids, mites, fleas, lice, earwigs, cockroaches and, to a lesser extent, slugs and snails.

One drawback with conventional insecticides is the ability of the insect to develop resistance to that particular poison. As far as is known, no insect can build up resistance to diatomaceous earth dust, any more than humans can develop tolerance to ground glass.

It took years of research on the part of Clark and de Lisle to make sure their original observations were correct—that tiny silica spears were literally cutting the insides of the insects to pieces.

This was fine—as far as it went. But if this dust killed bugs, might it not be harmful to people too?

With the approval of the Food and Drug Administration, a series of tests was set up at Arizona State University using white rats. At the end of the 90-day test period, the animals which had been fed diatomaceous earth dust were actually fatter and healthier than the control rats.

It is believed now that their gain was due to essential minerals in the dust.

While all this sounds very new and exciting, it is known that diatomaceous earth was used by the Egyptians in the time of the Pharaohs—and Joseph—to preserve their stored grain from insect pests.

And now the research scientists are wondering whether, when sparrows and other birds take a dust bath, they are ridding themselves of parasites through this same principle, which may be as old as the earth itself.

JOHN CROSBY Reviews Real-Life Drama

All London's a Stage

LONDON — The little, enclosed, very English, very green park outside my friend's window is a little like those old French theatrical tableaux where, when the curtain rises, everything starts to happen at once: a governess wheels her perambulator in from up-stage right to downstage left, small boys roll hoops in the other direction uttering—bah, bah, bah—happy, childlike cries, lovers stroll under the immense eaves of the downstage centre, the old folk read their papers, vendors vend.

The whole thing is a little dream-like and almost too theatrical. Any minute I always expect the stage director to step in and say, "All right, let's break for lunch."

No doubt about it, London is the loveliest, liveliest stage set in the world. I am going to get some howls from the Paris set on that one, but that's my position.

Paris is a movie set; it's for long shots. London is intimate. It's an electrician's dream of a stage set with all sorts of doorways where you can lower all the lights except for a single spot on a girl's face.

Outside my window under a double row of immense trees the English play cricket in Burton Court in their ridiculous white flannels and sweaters while the old soldiers in their scarlet tunics, from the Royal Hospital Christopher Wren built just for my personal pleasure outside my front windows, tootle away their Rule Britannia. The empire is some but the melodies linger on.

Just two blocks away is King's Road which The Observer calls "the most exotic village street in Britain." On King's Road, any morning in this glorious September weather, you can see the prettiest girls in England in the tightest pants on the island being ogled by leather-jacketed rockers with the longest hair found on men anywhere.

As you stroll down King's Road past the bazaar which sells the kinkiest, most way-out dresses for girls and John Michael's which sells tapering trousers and Italian shoes to the boys, you'll come to Stanton's, a fruit stall that has been here for 100 years. The present Stanton used to work for Lawrence of Arabia.

You'll pass Roote's, which we call a drugstore and they call a chemist's, where we all go, the Kenco Coffee Bar, where the beats hang out in the afternoons swapping girls and party information, as well as some marvelous pubs, some great bookstores.

The restaurants are most underground — Alexander's at the head of Smith Street, Buzzy's Bistro under the sidewalk where the food is cheap enough to attract the beautiful and the broke.

At the head of the street is Sloane Square where the Royal Court Hotel is on one corner and the Royal Court Theatre is kitty-corner. At the Royal Court, John Osborne, Arnold Wesker, and a host of England's most gifted stage directors got their start.

All this within five minutes walk from my front door. Theatre, hotel, park, some of the best shops of all kinds, some of the prettiest little houses anywhere. A village within a city, which is the true secret of decent living in the urban age.

Of course, Chelsea as Bohemia is a bit of a fake. This part of Chelsea is very much the high rent district. Those immensely charming little Georgian box houses on the rabbit warren of streets back of King's Road can cost you $100,000. The artists have fled deeper into Chelsea where rents are still reasonable.

But King's Road thrives on its own heartbeat, its sidewalks crammed with variety. Along with the bearded beats, the tight pants girls, you see the lawyers in their bowlers and their black suits which is almost a uniform, the Chelsea's aged pensioners who all look to be 90 in their scarlet coats, the mums in their frilly hats shopping with their schoolgirl daughters in sensible shoes and tweed skirts.

There's a little bit of everything on King's Road.

Brando to Play Pope?

NEW YORK (NANA) — Marlon Brando blew into town for one evening, then back to Hollywood. Object: to see The Deputy. To play the Pope on screen? Emlyn Williams starred on Broadway. Marlon could have used a strong role at this rather downbeat stage of his career.

Elizabeth Ashley did not pay $35,000 for her release from Barefoot in the Park only to see George Peppard in London. She is still thinking of Liz and her future. This week she has been in Paris conferring with New Wave director Francois Truffaut, who saw her twice in Barefoot and was enraptured. He wants her for Fahrenheit 91. The 32-year-old director of the award-winning 400 Blows and Jules and Jim plans to make the film in the U.S. next year.

Lilli Palmer, by the way, has joined George Peppard in Crossbow. And all of a sudden, after being away from London for five years, the enchanting Miss Palmer has three films all going at once, Crossbow, Moll Flanders with Kim Novak and Three Loves with ex-Queen Soraya in Rome. The more films for Lilli, the more I like it.

Shirley Booth made her final trip to Cape Cod during this summer's hiatus from Hawl, now starting another season. Shirley, a confirmed easterner, is now a ditto westerner.

She is selling her 1810 home on the Cape to live all the time in her hillside house in Beverly. Of course this is the cue for the sponsor to drop her show.

Victor Berge was explaining why he gave his half-million-dollar farm to Connecticut University. "I had no time for the farm. When I was inside I wanted to be outside, and when I was outside, I wanted to be inside."

The death of William Holden's brother in South America had quite a lot to do with Bill's return to wife Brenda Marshall. Bill's older brother was killed in a plane during the last war. He is the only brother left and with so much tragedy, one begins to think of true values.

Hugh O'Brian was the talk of Hawaii when he begged Barbara Bush to swim in the altogether for their scene in In Harm's Way "to make it more realistic."

VANCOUVER (CP)—Moby Doll, a member of a large species of whale, is mostly eating from the hand of keeper Vince Fendell.

Chlorinated Cocktail

Whisky-Lovers Wail Over Water Supply

INVERNESS (Reuters) — The water supply of Inverness, main city of the Scottish Highlands, is so bad it "contaminates the whisky," town clerk James Cameron told the local health committee.

The water tasted like the chlorinated water in swimming pools, he said.

Dr. W. D. Wilson, the town's medical officer of health, explained the odd taste was due to work being carried out in the reservoir and that the water was "bacteriologically correct." The situation was "temporary."

Lumber Exports At Ogden Point Close to Record

By DON GAIN

Victoria export lumber shipments, which seemed heading toward a record year, dropped a whopping 17,000,000 board feet in August, but shipping officials say the slump is only temporary.

Wheat shipments from the Ogden Point elevators are up nearly 2,000,000 bushels from the previous year. Wheat shipments in August were more than double those in August, 1963.

"We'll still have a record year," said one official.

STRONG YEAR
George Dawson of King Bros., shipping agents, also said he has no doubts about a strong year for exports.

"Lumber yards in the U.S. take inventory every once in a while," he said, "and I think that is why charters are rather low. This happens periodically but shipments are going to resume again."

"This is general," another shipping official said. "We usually have a month or so like this during the year. It's just a temporary condition."

The upswing may have resumed already.

Early this week three ships called at Ogden Point for wheat. The Queen'sville picked up 3,000 tons for South America. The Bonneville is in this morning loading 500 tons for the Philippines. The Master George will dock at noon today to pick up a full cargo, about 11,000 tons, for China.

August, 1964, wheat shipments from Victoria amounted to 530,449 bushels, more than double the 1963 figure of 246,400.

This year's crop year, which ended July 31, showed shipments of 7,937,495 bushels, up from the previous year's figure of 6,221,796.

Lumber figures, which were nearly 16,000,000 board feet ahead of last year up to the end of July, are now about 1,000,000 board feet behind last year.

AUGUST SLUMP

The slump occurred in August when they fell from the 1963 figure of 33,093,323 board feet to 16,333,176.

From January to July, 1963, lumber shipments from Victoria totalled 125,051,344. This year's total for the same period is 150,801,080.

But shipping officials are optimistic about it. They feel the port will not only pick up the slack but will forge ahead of last year's total shipments.

Breakwell

Pension Hopes Raised

Hong Kong veterans hope for insurance coverage for their wives and families as a result of a government survey now under way, Frank Breakwell said Tuesday.

The Victoria president of the Hong Kong Veterans' Association of Canada, said "we are hoping this will give us the answers we are looking for."

Just returned from a three-day conference of the association in Winnipeg, he was commenting on the survey now being carried out by Dr. H. J. Richardson, medical adviser to the Canadian pension commission.

He said most Hong Kong veterans die at an early age, around 45, as a result of nearly four years of privation in prison camps.

"Unfortunately the conditions existing in the Hong Kong veterans have been undiagnosable and the injuries are invisible," he said. "We understand the pension commissioners must have something on which to base a decision and we hope this survey may provide it."

COMPARISON
Mr. Breakwell said Dr. Richardson is making a study of Hong Kong veterans in comparison with veterans who served in other war theatres.

According to statistics, he said, of 1,400 Hong Kong veterans who returned to Canada after the war, 103 died before the end of 1963 at an average age of 44.

About 25 of these veterans live on Vancouver Island, he said, and 111 on the mainland.

Mr. Breakwell attended the Winnipeg conference with Col. George Trist of Victoria, commanding officer of the Winnipeg Grenadiers in Hong Kong in 1941 and Victoria MP David Groos.

Best City Mums Airborne Today For London Show

Two dozen choice chrysanthemums grown in Victoria will be flown to England today to be displayed in the National Chrysanthemum Show in London.

Carefully selected Tuesday from around five dozen blooms grown by members of Victoria Horticultural Society and Victoria Chrysanthemum Society, the flowers will be placed on the 10 a.m. flight today for the 16-hour trip to London.

NOT COMPETING
The show is being held in London Friday and Saturday.

The flowers will not be entered in the show for points-winning purposes, but will promote Vancouver Island flower-growing.

Ironical touch is that many of the two dozen blooms have been grown from cuttings originally flown here from England in the spring.

Four army men bound for Nanaimo were taken to HMCS Naden Hospital after their truck went out of control on the Trans-Canada Highway a mile past Goldstream intersection, hit a rock wall and overturned.

Injured were the driver, Pte. Maxie Yamot-sky, Vancouver; Signalman Barry Patterson, Sooke, and Sgt. Hugh Miller, Nanaimo. The fourth man, Cpl. A. L. Hyde, was released after a check-up.

'Makes You Choke'

Foul Fumes Return To Law Courts

Foul-smelling fumes have returned to Victoria's Law Courts, according to one civil servant who refused Tuesday to be identified.

"I think it's the heating system," the informant said. "It's a very strong smell. It makes you choke. It's hard to describe, but it's very unpleasant."

SEARCH IN '63

Complaints were made in the summer of 1963 by employees in the building who told of dizziness, headaches and vomiting. A painstaking search at that time, using sensitive instruments and chemical reactions, disclosed no trace of carbon monoxide or other poisonous fumes.

"It was okay this summer but now they're turning the heat on we can smell it again," the civil servant said.

"About every half hour today we could smell it. I got a headache and felt quite nauseated. It affects some people's eyes, makes them water."

NEW INVESTIGATION

It was found in 1963 that a vortex was created around the roof when winds were westerly and fumes from the oil furnace were sucked into the building. Extension of the penthouse wall and baffling of the intake were planned at that time.

This was done, a public works department official said last night. He said the latest complaint would be investigated.

Air Canada Crash Probe Set

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—

A coroner's inquest into the deaths of 118 persons in the crash of an Air Canada jet at nearby St. Therese last Nov. 29 probably will be resumed Sept. 28.

"A coroner's inquest is not a public inquiry," Coroner Dr. Jean-Louis Tardion said. "It's sole purpose is to discover whether there is or isn't criminal responsibility."

'Persecuted' in Canada

'Undercover Agent' Seeking Asylum in U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Calvin Macdonald, who claims to have worked for more than 10 years as an RCMP undercover agent in the Communist Party, has applied to emigrate to the United States.

Mr. Macdonald, and a woman he said was his wife, walked into the United States consular office here Tuesday to seek political asylum in the U.S.

He said he was seeking asylum from "political persecution" by the Canadian government.

However, when he emerged from the consular office about half an hour later, he said the U.S. consul here does not have the power to hear his plea for political asylum—that only the U.S. embassy in Ottawa can do that.

Instead of seeking political asylum, he said they will attempt to enter the United States as immigrants.

Mr. Macdonald said his application will have

Case Going to Washington

to be processed by the U.S. state department in Washington and that he will receive "special" consideration.

Mr. Macdonald came into prominence three weeks ago when David Colishaw, head of an organization called Underdog, tossed a carton of beef blood on the Commons floor in Ottawa. He said he did this to draw attention to Macdonald, who wants the government to acknowledge he was an RCMP agent.

B.C.-Alaska Power

Vast Plan In Works For North

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

WHITEHORSE — Resources Minister Ray Williston disclosed plans Tuesday for a vast private power development scheme on the Iskut River in northwestern B.C. and proposed formulation of a plan to handle negotiations with Alaska without recourse to the International Joint Commission.

He told the B.C.-Alaska-Yukon conference that what he suggested would be regarded as a radical change in the accepted pattern of international negotiations.

But the minister said some form of "localized international negotiations" was needed to work out agreements on sharing of such regional resources.

DIRECT HANDLING
"It requires direct handling rather than being taken before the International Joint Commission where it will be considered against a background that will make resolution very difficult," Mr. Williston said. He added that international negotiation could take five to 10 years to gain agreement.

Governor William Egan, who is also attending the conference, said Alaska hoped a new approach could be decided upon that would avoid "throwing problems of this kind into the laps" of the IJC.

Mr. Williston made the first public announcement at the conference of surveys conducted in recent months by the B.C. water rights branch into the feasibility of power projects on the Iskut River.

PULP, TIMBER
With prospect of extremely cheap power, costing between two and three mills, the minister said, there has been a proposal for an integrated pulp and timber operation in the heavily forested Iskut Valley.

Power from the project will probably also serve the $55,000,000 Granduc Copper operations near Stewart, scheduled to begin operations in 1968, and even larger copper deposits to be developed at Galore Creek.

Mr. Williston also told the conference that there is a good prospect that the cities of Petersburg and Wrangell, located on the Alaskan Panhandle some 80 miles from the proposed Iskut Valley site, would also purchase blocks of power.

NO "PIE-IN-SKY"
Forest and hydro electric reserves have already been placed by the B.C. government on vast tracts of the Iskut Valley. "This is no pie-in-the-sky scheme," said Mr. Williston.

The conference voted unanimously to appoint a joint B.C.-Alaska-Yukon power committee to study on a sustaining basis co-operative development of power resources in the north.

Cobalt Bomb Or Death Ray New Monster?

LONDON (UPI)—British government quarters were taken completely by surprise Tuesday night by Premier Nikita Khrushchev's announcement of a new "monstrous weapon."

Government officials conceded they had no immediate idea what it might be, and scientists were reluctant to comment immediately.

But the announcement set off at once a host of speculation ranging from the weapon among cobalt-type explosives and death rays.

The forum for the Moscow announcement—a gathering of visiting Japanese—and the timing both added to the mystification.

Some observers thought the weapon—if indeed it exists—might be the cobalt bomb, at one time described as the most dreaded weapon of all.

This is considered the type of weapon which Prof. Albert Einstein had in mind when he said in 1950, that, if successful, "radioactive poisoning of the atmosphere and hence annihilation of any life on earth will have been brought within the range of technical possibilities."

Khrushchev, in describing the new weapon, said "it is a means of the destruction and annihilation of humanity."

The Soviet press and radio made no mention of Khrushchev's revelation.

Informed sources in Washington said the United States has "no evidence" that the Soviets have developed any sensational new weapon.

They said Khrushchev's remarks to a group of visiting Japanese probably was an attempt at intimidation, most likely directed at the Chinese Communists.

One informed source speculated that Khrushchev was talking about advanced nuclear weapons developed as a result of the 1961 and 1962 Soviet atmospheric tests.

In those test programs, the Russians set off the largest nuclear blasts ever triggered.

A Soviet explosion of Oct. 13, 1961 was estimated at the equivalent of 58 million tons of TNT. Experts said this device could easily be stepped up to 100 million tons just by giving it a uranium jacket.

In his remarks, an atomic energy source said, Khrushchev may have been indicating that the test device of 1961 and 1962 now have been developed into deliverable warheads.

Experts were puzzled as much by his use of the word "new" as by the word "monstrous." It is known to be possible to build bigger bombs and to increase the amount of radioactivity they deposit, but the first inclination was to think Khrushchev would hardly describe this as "new."

Malaysian Pact Aim Of Norway

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Norway Tuesday offered the United Nations Security Council a proposed resolution calling for an end to hostilities between Indonesia and Malaysia. It asked them to resume talks aimed at a peaceful settlement of their conflict.

Norwegian Ambassador Sivert A. Nielsen, acting on his government's instructions, introduced the resolution after an Afro-Asian effort to get the two sides to agree to a similar resolution had failed, mainly because of objections by Indonesia. Ivory Coast and Morocco were to have put in that proposal.

CYPRUS TODAY
The council adjourned its debate on the question until Thursday. It will meet today on the Cyprus issue.

From Kuala Lumpur, meanwhile, came reports that Malaysian forces backed by British Gurkhas and New Zealanders killed six Indonesian paratroopers Tuesday and captured a number of others, the defence ministry announced.

Coup Leader And Troops Still Threat

SAIGON (CP)—A high South Vietnamese military source reported today that Col. Huynh Van Ton, commander of the 7th Division which spearheaded Sunday's coup attempt, has not surrendered to Premier Nguyen Khanh's government.

The source, a spokesman for Khanh, said the situation is extremely dangerous. He said Ton had returned with his division to the Mekong River delta capital of My Tho, 40 miles southwest of Saigon, and was threatening to cut road and communications with Saigon, creating an independent zone.

Power Rating Set High

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—British Columbia's hydro power potential is about 100,000,000 kilowatts—roughly seven times more than most estimates, says Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Dr. Shrum compared his estimate, which he said could be out several thousand kilowatts with federal and provincial ratings generally used.

The federal government fixes the province's potential at 14,500,000 kilowatts and the provincial water resources says 22,000,000 kilowatts.

PEACE PEAK

Dr. Shrum spoke Tuesday to the final luncheon of the Pacific Northwest Trade Association's conference on energy resources. He said the total existing electricity consumption of B.C. is 1,300,000 kilowatts, not counting the energy used by Kildama's smelters.

Peak production of the Peace River project will be 4,000,000 kilowatts, said Dr. Shrum.

Britain's Lowly Liberals Looking Up

By HAROLD MORRISON

Constantly struggling at the edge of the political abyss, the gallant little Liberal party of Britain sees a faint wisp of hope in the crushing election battle between the Conservatives and the Socialists. It is their hope that fate and a troubled electorate may thrust to the Liberals the balance of power in the next 30-seat Commons.

Judged against the background of decades of political obscurity, this hope may be no more than a mirage in the political desert. The Liberals had only seven members in this Parliament and only six in the Parliament before that—a dark and despondent summation of the party's decline from the dazzling power of Asquith and Lloyd George a half-century ago.

Yet the party's prospects can not be entirely dismissed. National polls indicate a tight, bone-crushing struggle between the Labor and Conservative parties. A narrow victory margin by either of these giants may force them to court the Liberals with new ardor and attention.

Those who scoff at Jo Grimond's Liberals and perennially doom them to oblivion are asked to look at the figures. During the last five years the party's paid-up membership is said to have increased to 350,000 from 100,000. Of a total of some 20,000 towns and other councilmen in Britain, the number carrying the Liberal label has climbed to 1,850 from 475.

There also is the indication that not all the faithful are completely enchanted with the Conservative leadership of Sir Alec Douglas-Home or the Labor leadership of Harold Wilson. Liberals hope to build up strength among the white-collar voters of the London suburbs.

This faint prospect of a Liberal resurgence raised the question of how a narrow-margin majority party would fare in the next Parliament. All three parties appear to be committed to the welfare state as far as social services are concerned. It is in the fields of industrial relations, management and national defence where sharp variations may take place.

Labor strives for expanded socialism, for greater government intrusion in industrial management; the Tories want industrial capitalism to flourish. The Tories want to keep the nuclear deterrent force; the Socialists want to scrap it. The Tories want Britain to get into the European common market; Labor wants to move more in the direction of Commonwealth trade.

The Liberals side with the Tories on the common market approach. They reject industrial socialism as an ultimate solution and would have government work in partnership with industry rather than impose federal management and direction over capitalism.

If there is any falling away from the party faithful of the giants, the Liberals hope to gain from the Socialists. That they believe, is only fair. After all, it was quarrelling within the Liberal family that is said to have paved the way for expansion of Labor's political power.

Reaction Shock-Waves Vary

Northerners Now Convinced Bennett Means His Invitation

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

WHITEHORSE — Officials and residents of the Yukon are convinced now that Premier Bennett was serious when he invited them to become part of B.C.

There has been no official reaction so far from territorial representatives attending the B.C.-Alaska-Yukon conference here, and none was expected because administration rests with Ottawa.

But the shock-waves resulting from Mr. Bennett's offer, made at Monday's opening conference session and strengthened by the Premier's statement outside the conference hall, hit here early this morning.

Commissioner B. R. Cameron told delegates that he received several long distance calls "from coast to coast" between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. yesterday seeking confirmation of the B.C. bid. One of the calls was from shocked federal authorities in Ottawa.

Local reaction from Whitehorse residents ranged from "It's the best thing that could possibly happen" to the more cautious "what is B.C. going to get out of this?"

In the corridors outside the convention hall Tuesday the premier was lobbying like mad for the B.C. plan. He assured local delegates that all his province hoped to gain was fuller development of the northland.

White-Led Congolese Capture Two Towns

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—

Congolese army troops aided by white mercenaries were reported to have recaptured two more towns from Communist-backed rebels Tuesday.

Apparent target of the government drive was Stanleyville where rebel leaders have set up a "Congolese people's government." The president of the pro-Communist Stanleyville regime, Christoph Gbenye, said Tuesday his government was at "war with the United States of America."

Congo Rebel Force 'At War with U.S.'

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (UPI) — President Christoph Gbenye of the Congo's "People's Republic" rebel government said Tuesday his regime is at "war with the United States of America."

He said this war was the reason for his refusal to permit an International Red Cross commission to take food and supplies into Stanleyville.

Alberni Will Vote Oct. 17

Chamber Solid for Amalgamation

By MARGARET TREBETT

PORT ALBERNI — With no dissenting votes, the Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce went on record Tuesday in favor of amalgamation of the Twin Cities, an issue which goes to the voters Oct. 17.

The decision followed a speech by Alberni Mayor Fred Bishop, the third and last of speakers invited to the last three Chamber meetings to discuss amalgamation.

Lake deputy municipal affairs minister J. Everett Brown and Port Alberni Mayor Lew Hammer, he came out in favor, saying there were no disadvantages which would not be more than offset by advantages. Mayor Bishop said present information indicates a merger would mean a loss of $30,000 in provincial grants, or about half a mill in taxes.

This would be more than offset by savings through greater purchasing power and efficiency, he said.

The mayor said amalgamation might mean increased police costs, but here again efficiency of a joint department would be an advantage.

He told of an estimated saving of $13,000 in administration costs, even greater savings in the operation of the works department but no great change in fire department costs.

Money also may be saved in town planning and engineering services, and the possible construction of a works yard and public safety building.

Merchants who operate in both cities would need only one trades license instead of two.

Referring to the co-operation between taxpayers of the Twin Cities during the tidal wave emergency in March, Mayor Bishop said:

"If there is value in joining together in adversity, there must be value in joining together for progress."

"I don't think there are many old prejudices remaining but, if there are, I ask that they be put aside," he said. "Let us set as our objective a community that is second to none."

Chamber president Mrs. Edna Souther suggested, after the vote favoring a merger, the formation of a Chamber committee to support the two councils in their program.

Cowichan Hospital Losing Beds

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Provincial government delay in approving various stages of planning for the proposed $3,500,000 Cowichan district hospital may have cost the hospital 25 beds.

City council decided this week that Ald. Jim Saunders will investigate and make a detailed report on the number of beds now expected in the hospital.

LATE THIS YEAR Council also learned during lengthy discussion of the issue that part of the King's Daughter's Hospital may be needed even after the new structure is built.

The matter came up when Ald. Saunders said hospital officials hope tenders can be called late this year with some construction starting early next year.

Hospital plans included 165 beds when the issue went before the voters several years ago. But Ald Saunders said he believes the total now is 160 beds, a figure set by the government and a reduction blamed on construction costs which have risen since the vote.

DELAYS BLAMED He said more beds might be provided on the top floor later but was not sure if the government would pay for them.

Ald. Hamish Mutter indicated he felt the reduction was due more in delays in provincial approval of planning stages.

He said the present hospital has 111 beds and "we must have more" because the district's population is increasing at 2 per cent each year.

Council received one item of good news, when a letter from Highways Minister Gagliardi advised that the long-awaited installation of curbs and gutters along the highway through the city will take place this fall.

VANDALISM A charge that vandalism is "creeping closer" to the city was voiced by Ald. Mutter, although he stressed the RCMP is "doing a good job."

He mentioned rowdiness at the recent Maple Bay regatta and suggested an application to the attorney-general's department for corrective action. But council took no definite stand.

Council authorized the public works department to raise the northern bank of the Cowichan River, to improve flood protection for the city area. Ald. Mutter said the river will no longer be a threat to the city in two or three years.

SEWAGE SYSTEM North Cowichan expressed interest in joining the sewage lagoon system for areas bordering the city in the west and north. Duncan officials will investigate feasibility of the move.

Council accepted the advisory planning commission's stand in favor of rezoning of two properties near the Legion Hall on Trunk Road for residential and apartment use. A bylaw will be prepared and a public hearing held Sept. 28.

Safety Council

Alberni Campaign On Accident Toll

PORT ALBERNI — The number of accidental deaths and injuries in this area shows the need for "a good, active safety council," says Ald. Bob Dalton.

He is spearheading an accident prevention campaign which will be kicked off in Port Alberni Hall at 8 p.m. Thursday with the organization of an Alberni Valley branch of the B.C. Safety Council.

GOOD TURNOUT

Ald. Dalton said there is every indication of a good turnout at the public meeting.

Attending will be B.C. council president G. W. Adams, executive director H. A. Hampar and Thomas Hoag, Alberni area industrial relations supervisor for Mac-Powell.

One Bid For Hospital

NANAIMO — Only one bid for the old Nanaimo hospital was received by the Nanaimo regional hospital board before the deadline at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

At that hour, board chairman William Cochran opened the bid of $30,000 from Nanaimo Realty, acting as agent for K.A. Ray and Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

The firm indicated that, if the bid is accepted, it will convert the building into an apartment house or senior citizen's home.

FINAL APPROVAL The board meets Sept. 24 to decide whether to recommend acceptance of the tender to the hospital society.

The society must meet later to decide its stand, and an accepted bid would have to be submitted to Health Minister Martin for final approval.

The old hospital has been vacant since the Nanaimo regional general hospital was opened almost two years ago.

Esquimalt Dockyard Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. today in the main hall, 622 Admirals Road.

Minister to Work With Indians Of Alberni Valley

PORT ALBERNI — A new United Church minister at large who will work full time with the Indian people of the Alberni Valley will be inducted during a special service at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Alberni Residential School chapel.

A United Church spokesman said Tuesday Rev. F. E. Kemppling was appointed as a result of the church's concern for the Indians in this area.

Mr. Kemppling will work on both reserves and in the Twin Cities, in co-operation with the two local United churches.

In recent years, he has served on reserves in Ontario and Alberta, and in 1960 he was vice-principal and Christian education director in the Alberni Residential School.

Rev. Roy Rodgers will conduct the induction service, assisted by Rev. K. D. Verkerk.

Other ministers and interested people are expected to attend.

COURTENAY — Grants for mentally handicapped children were regrettably cut, and fees for non-resident students in general schools were dropped by the district school board Monday night.

A busy term-opening board meeting also delayed action on its relations with the press, and learned district pupil enrolment has soared 9.6 per cent.

Trustees agreed last June, after meeting a committee from the Comox Valley Association for Mentally Handicapped Children, to pay grants for retarded children attending kindergarten in the association school starting this week.

Since then the board has learned costs for retarded children of kindergarten age are not shareable with senior governments and there is nothing in the budget for such grants.

To complicate the picture further, the kindergarten will have two four-year-old pupils, whose age is below the limit for grants.

Situation Reviewed

The trustees decided they could pay nothing for the four-year-olds but can pay half the grant for the two other pupils, aged five, for the next four months. The situation will be reviewed for the next year's budget.

The non-resident fee was dropped at least for the 1964-65 term after secretary-treasurer C. N. Peterson reported other districts had fees ranging from nothing to $25 a month, the former Courtenay figure.

The $25 was charged against all students outside the district even if they lived with friends or relatives in the district.

District schools superintendent C. E. Ritchie said enrolment is 4,918, or 9.6 per cent above the 4,486 in the schools in September last year.

Protest Considered

The board began to consider the protest of the three local reporters against its recent resolution restricting reports on board communications read at open meetings. But time ran out and the matter was put over to the next meeting.

Mr. Ritchie said the district teacher total of 177 is 13 above last year, two teachers were hired since school opened to take care of overloads and another may be needed at Tsolum.

About 100 students who moved to the new Puntledge Park school from Arden Road had to move back because estimates of Puntledge pupil enrolment were too low.

Mr. Ritchie also suggested a careful look by trustees at summer school plans before next spring.

Board chairman James St. John met city council members Tuesday and will meet the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday to discuss the school referendum which goes before the voters Oct. 15.

Fire Levels Home At Duncan

DUNCAN — The 10-member Ray Goldsmith family, now berry-picking in Washington state, lost everything Monday night when a fire of unknown origin destroyed their $3,000 home and all belongings on the Quamichan Indian reserve.

The eight children of Mr. Goldsmith, 34, range in age from four to 13 years. Three weeks ago, a hay-filled barn 220 yards from the Goldsmith home was lost to fire.

$250 for Tourism

Grant Cut By Alberni

ALBERNI — The Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau has lost out, by $200, in its request for a $450 grant from Alberni city council for this year.

Council decided this week $450 was an excessive amount in relation to the amount spent by the bureau on tourist promotion for the Alberni Valley.

A $250 grant was finally made on recommendation of the council tourist committee.

Aldermen pointed out the Alberni Board of Trade has merged with the Port Alberni Chamber of Commerce in the past year and any donation would be duplicated by Port Alberni. The latter city's council has already given the bureau $650.

Alberni council also:

● Granted $25 to support the Alberni Valley Art Group's forthcoming third jury show.

● Named Mayor Fred Bishop and Aldermen C. M. Blair and T. E. Hamilton as voting delegates to next week's UBCM meeting.

● Chose city manager James Sawyer and Aldermen John Williamson and Roy James as guest delegates.

● Instructed Mr. Sawyer to arrange a public meeting Oct. 1 to discuss amalgamation, which goes to a vote Oct. 17.

● Authorized architects McArravy and Barley to prepare working drawings for the proposed health centre.

● Decided to inform the Cherry Creek Improvement district board the city is not prepared at this time to extend sewer service to the rural area.

This statement was made Tuesday by Ald. Bus MacDonald, chairman of the inlet development committee.

Mr. Tait said there is provision for meters, the lot will be paved and served by street lights, portable curbing will delineate the separate parking areas, stairs will lead to the business section and there will be a ramp for wheelchairs and baby carriages.

But Nanaimo Fights Hazards

Traffic Probe Must Wait

NANAIMO — City council has decided to delay a comprehensive traffic survey in Nanaimo but will continue attempts to wipe out traffic hazards.

Council decided this week the survey must await completion of planning studies and the Commercial Inlet project.

To eliminate hazards, council: ● Decided to continue the program of level crossing protection started in 1960, in which Nanaimo, Ottawa and the E and N Railway share costs of automatic signals at more dangerous crossings.

VAST PRIVATE POWER PROJECT PROPOSED FOR NORTHERN B.C.

Cobalt Bomb Or Death Ray New Monster?

LONDON (UPI)—British government quarters were taken completely by surprise Tuesday night by Premier Nikita Khrushchev's announcement of a new "monstrous weapon."

Malaysian Pact Aim Of Norway

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Norway Tuesday offered the United Nations Security Council a proposed resolution calling for an end to hostilities between Indonesia and Malaysia. It asked them to resume talks aimed at a peaceful settlement of their conflict.

Norwegian Ambassador Sivert A. Nielsen, acting on his government's instructions, introduced the resolution after an Afro-Asian effort to get the two sides to agree to a similar resolution had failed, mainly because of objections by Indonesia, Ivory Coast and Morocco were to have put in that proposal.

CYPRUS TODAY
The council adjourned its debate on the question until Thursday. It will meet today on the Cyprus issue.
From Kuala Lumpur, meanwhile, came reports that Malaysian forces backed by British Gurkhas and New Zealanders killed six Indonesian paratroopers Tuesday and captured a number of others, the defence ministry announced.

His Problem Poser For Police

City police were faced with a problem early today when a man, determined to see Attorney-General Robert Bonner, stood his ground on the steps of the legislative buildings.
Gert Larsen, 53, Shaugnessy, told the Colonist he had been injured in 1956 and had an operation for the injury in 1959. He has been seeking workmen's compensation ever since, he said, and his case has been given three reviews.
Police tried to persuade him to leave, but technically the legislative buildings are outside city police jurisdiction. It was still a standoff at press time.

Power Rating Set High

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — British Columbia's hydro power potential is about 100,000,000 kilowatts—roughly seven times more than most estimates, says Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Dr. Shrum compared his estimate, which he said could be out several thousand kilowatts, with federal and provincial ratings generally used.
The federal government fixes the province's potential at 14,500,000 kilowatts and the provincial water resources says 22,000,000 kilowatts.

PEACE PEAK
Dr. Shrum spoke Tuesday to the final luncheon of the Pacific Northwest Trade Association's conference on energy resources.
He said the total existing electricity consumption of B.C. is 1,300,000 kilowatts, not counting the energy used by Kitimat's smelters.
Peak production of the Peace River project will be 4,000,000 kilowatts, said Dr. Shrum.

Reaction Shock-Waves Vary

Northerners Now Convinced Bennett Means His Invitation

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter
WHITEHORSE — Officials and residents of the Yukon are convinced now that Premier Bennett was serious when he invited them to become part of B.C.
There has been no official reaction so far from territorial representatives attending the B.C.-Alaska-Yukon conference here, and none was expected because administration rests with Ottawa.
But the shock-waves resulting from Mr. Bennett's offer, made at Monday's opening conference session and strengthened by the Premier's statement outside the conference hall, hit here early this morning.

Commissioner B. R. Cameron told delegates that he received several long distance calls "from coast to coast" between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. yesterday seeking confirmation of the B.C. bid. One of the calls was from shocked federal authorities in Ottawa.
Local reaction from Whitehorse residents ranged from "It's the best thing that could possibly happen" to the more cautious "what is B.C. going to get out of this?"
In the corridors outside the convention hall Tuesday the premier was lobbying like mad for the B.C. plan. He assured local delegates that all his province hoped to gain was fuller development of the northland.

White-Led Congolese Capture Two Towns

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—Congolese army troops aided by white mercenaries were reported to have recaptured two more towns from Communist-backed rebels Tuesday.

Leopoldville radio said government troops seized Lisala, capital of the middle Congo province, and Lulimba, about 100 miles north of the North Katanga capital of Albertville.
Apparent target of the government drive was Stanleyville where rebel leaders have set up a "Congolese people's government."

Congo Rebel Force 'At War with U.S.'

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (UPI) — President Christophe Gbenye of the Congo's "People's Republic" rebel government said Tuesday his regime is at "war with the United States of America."
He said this war was the reason for his refusal to permit an International Red Cross commission to take food and supplies into Stanleyville.

But the minister said some form of "localized international negotiations" was needed to work out agreements on sharing of such regional resources.

DIRECT HANDLING
"It requires direct handling rather than being taken before the International Joint Commission where it will be considered against a background that will make resolution very difficult," Mr. Williston said. He added that international negotiation could take five to 10 years to gain agreement.

Governor William Egan, who is also attending the conference, said Alaska hoped a new approach could be decided upon that would avoid "throwing problems of this kind into the laps" of the IJC.
Mr. Williston made the first public announcement at the conference of surveys conducted in recent months by the B.C. water rights branch into the feasibility of power projects on the Iskut River.

PULP, TIMBER
With prospect of extremely cheap power, costing between two and three mills, the minister said, there has been a proposal for an integrated pulp and timber operation in the heavily forested Iskut Valley.

Power from the project will probably also serve the $25,000,000 Grandt Copper operations near Stewart, scheduled to begin operations in 1968, and even larger copper deposits to be developed at Galore Creek.

Mr. Williston also told the conference that there is a good prospect that the cities of Petersburg and Wrangell, located on the Alaskan Panhandle some 80 miles from the proposed Iskut Valley site, would also purchase blocks of power.

NO "PIL-IN-SKY"
Forest and hydro electric reserves have already been placed by the B.C. government on vast tracts of the Iskut Valley. "This is no pie-in-the-sky scheme," said Mr. Williston.
The conference voted unanimously to appoint a joint B.C.-Alaska-Yukon power committee to study on a sustained basis co-operative development of power resources in the north.

Britain's Lowly Liberals Looking Up

By HAROLD MORRISON
Constantly struggling at the edge of the political abyss, the gallant little Liberal party of Britain sees a faint wisp of hope in the crushing election battle between the Conservatives and the Socialists. It is their hope that fate and a troubled electorate may thrust to the Liberals the balance of power in the next 630-seat Commons.

Judged against the background of decades of political obscurity, this hope may be no more than a mirage in the political desert. The Liberals had only seven members in this Parliament and only six in the Parliament before that—a dark and despondent summation of the party's decline from the dazzling power of Asquith and Lloyd George a half-century ago.

Yet the party's prospects can not be entirely dismissed. National polls indicate a tight, bone-crushing struggle between the Labor and Conservative parties. A narrow victory margin by either of these giants may force them to court the Liberals with new ardor and attention.
Those who scoff at Jo Grimond's Liberals and personally doom them to oblivion are asked to look at the figures. During the last five years the party's paid-up membership is said to have increased to 330,000 from 100,000. Of a total of some 28,000 towns and other communities in Britain, the number carrying the Liberal label has climbed to 1,850 from 475.

There also is the indication that not all the faithful are completely enchanted with the Conservative leadership of Sir Alec Douglas-Home or the Labor leadership of Harold Wilson. Liberals hope to build up strength among the white-collar voters of the London suburbs.
This faint prospect of a Liberal resurgence raised the question of how a narrow-margin majority party would fare in the next Parliament. All three parties appear to be committed to the welfare state as far as social services are concerned. It is in the fields of industrial relations, management and national defence where sharp variations may take place.

Labor strives for expanded socialism, for greater government intrusion in industrial management; the Tories want industrial capitalism to flourish. The Tories want to keep the nuclear deterrent force; the Socialists want to scrap it. The Tories want Britain to get into the European common market; Labor wants to move more in the direction of Commonwealth trade.

The Liberals side with the Tories on the common market approach. They reject industrial socialism as an ultimate solution and would have government work in partnership with industry rather than impose federal management and direction over capitalism.

If there is any falling away from the party faithful of the giants, the Liberals hope to gain from the Socialists. That they believe, is only fair. After all, it was quarrelling within the Liberal family that is said to have paved the way for expansion of Labor's political power.

Now It's Official U.K. Vote Oct. 15

LONDON (CP) — Ending many months of uncertainty, Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home announced Tuesday the British general elections will be held Oct. 15.
Sir Alec was received in audience Tuesday morning by the Queen at Balmoral Castle and asked for the dissolution of Parliament—first in peace-time to run its full life since a five-year limit was imposed in 1911.
